

B1

PEASANTS IN THE MAKING Malaysia's Green Revolution

DIANA WONG

Institute of Southeast Asian Studies

Acknowledgements

Acknowledgements		vii
Part I	The Framing of the Study
Chapter 1	The Empirical Setting: The Green Revolution and Muda	3
Chapter 2	Peasant Reproduction: A Framework of Analysis	15
Chapter 3	The Making of the Muda Region: The Social Organization of Land Colonization	29
Part II	The Anatomy of the Village
Chapter 4	The Village in Its Social Setting	45
Chapter 5	The Village Households: Indicators of Social Differentiation	52
Chapter 6	The Sample Households: Patterns of Social Differentiation	65
Part III	The Transformation of the Village Economy
Chapter 7	The Production Cycle and the Division of Labour	111
Chapter 8	Landownership and Land Tenure	128
Chapter 9	Rural Indebtedness and the Marketing of Padi	145
Chapter 10	Patterns of Change in the Non-Padi Economy	160

Part IV	The Transformation of Village Society: The Unfolding of Social Differentiation
Chapter 11	Kinship and the Family Development Cycle	171
Chapter 12	The Village as a Community	184
Chapter 13	The Pattern of Leadership: From Patron to Broker	197
Part V	Conclusion
Chapter 14	Peasants in the Making — Muda's Green Revolution?	209
Appendix I	Research Methodology	222
Appendix II	Questionnaire	224
	Weights and Measures	230
Bibliography		231

	Acknowledgments
Part I	The Framing of the Study
Chapter 1	The Framing of the Study
Chapter 2	Peasant Reproduction: A Framework of Analysis
Chapter 3	The Making of the Muda Region: The Social Organization of Land Colonization
Part II	The Anatomy of the Village
Chapter 4	The Village in its Social Setting
Chapter 5	The Village Household: Indicators of Social Differentiation
Chapter 6	The Sample Household: Patterns of Social Differentiation
Part III	The Transformation of the Village Economy
Chapter 7	The Production Cycle and the Division of Labour
Chapter 8	Landownership and Land Tenure
Chapter 9	Rural Indebtedness and the Making of Debt
Chapter 10	Patterns of Change: Muda's Green Revolution	