

The State and its Changdao

*Sufficient Discursive Commonality
in Nation Renewal, with Malaysia as Case Study*

OOI KEE BENG
Department of Chinese Studies

國家及其常道

1959

01

Contents

Acknowledgements

PART ONE

Conceptual Considerations

1.1 Points of Departure	3
1.2 The Case of Malaysia	9
1.3 Modernisation as Nation Renewal	10
1.4 Recycling Ancient Chinese Concepts	12
1.5 Sufficient Discursive Commonality
1.5.1 The Changdao, its Daoli and Daode	16
1.5.2 Inherited Changdao	19
1.5.3 Political Opposition and the Changdao	25
1.6 The Dimension of Social Cohesion
– The Li-Fa Dichotomy	29
1.7 The Dimension of Social Dynamics
– The Structuring and the Spontaneous Levels	32
1.8 The Neiwai Dimension
– The Three Attitudes of International Relations	39
1.9 The Five Waves of Modern Nation Renewal
– Some Modern Changdao	46
1.10 Summary– A Paradigmatic Study of Nation Renewal	52

PART TWO

Renewing The Malaysian Nation

2.1 Historical Conditioning and Elements of National Discourse	57
2.1.1 Where Trade Winds Meet	57
2.1.2 The Colonial Period	58
2.1.3 Geopolitical Changes	60
2.1.4 The Japanese Period	61
2.1.5 Before and After Independence (Merdeka)	62
2.1.6 The 1969 Riots and the Aftermath	64
2.1.7 The Mahathir Period	65
2.2 Elements of the Malaysian Changdao	68
2.2.1 Ethnicity and Faith	69
2.2.2 Language Planning and Multi-ethnic Co-existence	71

2.2.3 The Civil Government and a Loyal Military	72
2.2.4 The Heritage of the ISA	73
2.2.5 Party Alliances and Ethnic Bargaining	74
2.2.6 Economic Strategies and Affirmative Actions	75
2.2.7 Privatisation – Growth and Greed	76
2.2.8 Mahathir’ s Visions and Illusions	77
2.2.9 National Icons, Infrastructural Monuments and Symbols of Success	78
2.2.10 Summary – Two Ways to Go	79
2.2.10.1 Crucial Problems of Governance	82
2.2.10.2 The 1999 Elections	83
2.2.10.3 Ending Preferential Treatment	86
2.3 Political Expressions of the Chinese Minority
2.3.1 Migration and Urbanisation	87
2.3.2 The Early Period – The Atlantic Wave	90
2.3.3 The Sinocentric Period – The Fascist Wave	94
2.3.4 The Beginning of Minoritisation – The Communist Wave	98
2.3.5 After Merdeka – The Pacific Wave	102
2.3.6 The NEP Period – The Non-Bumiputeras	103
2.3.7 Summary – Is Ethnicity Outmoded?	106
2.4 The National Raison d’ Etre – The Neiwai Dimension
2.4.1 Conditions of Decolonisation	111
2.4.2 Waves of War and Racial Conflicts	113
2.4.3 Stilling a Stormy Sea of New Nations	114
2.4.4 Mahathir’ s View on World Order	116
2.4.4 Religious Concerns and Economic Vigour	118
2.4.5 Summary – Telling Friend From Foe	119

PART THREE

Final Discussion – The Clash of Changdao

3.1 Theoretical Notions	123
3.2 Malaysia – Structuring and Causing Chaos	128

Bibliography	133
--------------	-----

Diagrams

Diagram 1: Chart of Important Concepts	28
Diagram 2: The Three Constitutive Dimensions of the Changdao	44
Diagram 3: The Three Constitutive Dimensions of the Changdao (in Chinese)	45
Diagram 4: Five Waves of Nation Renewal and Their Effects on Malaysia	48
Diagram 5: Five Waves of Nation Renewal and Their Effects on China	49