

*Kenichi Ohmae
on U.S.-Japan Relations*

FACT AND FRICTION

The Japan Times

An anthology of the author's articles published in English between 1985 and 1989

Contents

Growing Pains of a Borderless Economy	1
Parties to the Problem: Governments, Industries, Corporations and Consumers	11
The U.S. Congress' Inscrutable Trade Demands on Japan	21
The Fictitious Trade Imbalance: An 18th Century Interpretation ...	27
'Correcting the Deficit' Will Take More Changes in Our Understanding Than in Our Trade	35
Japan's Rice-Paddy Politics: The Farmers Have the Votes	41
The U.S.'s Real Problem Is Budget — Not Trade Deficit	47
Interest Ceases to Be Interesting With the Rise of the FX Empire ...	51
What Moves Exchange Rates? New Dynamics Challenge Traditional Theories	59
Don't Blame It on Tokyo: The U.S. Manufacturing Base Is Dwindling by Choice	83
Real Estate in Kabuto-cho Brings a Bull Market to Wall Street	97
A Lesson of the Crash — American Hegemony is Obsolete	105
Can a Weak Dollar Bring U.S. Manufacturers Back Home?	121
Who Save More — Americans or Japanese?	127

Low Dollar Has Made the U.S. Japan's Bargain Basement	131
Global Economics: Multinationals Shaping It, Governments Trying to Figure It Out	135
The U.S. Has No Need to Fear Foreign Investments: The Danger Lies Within	141
Global Consumers Versus Local Governments	147
The Illusion of Prosperity Masks a Powder Keg	155
Japan's Success Owes Nothing to Tokyo's 'Guiding Hand'	163
Time Is Pressing for an Economic Détente	169
Negotiating at the Razor's Edge	179