

SEARCHING

Dismantling the

FOR THE

Twentieth-Century Corporation—

SPIRIT

Lessons from Asian,

OF

Larry C.
Farrell

European, and American Entrepreneurs

ENTERPRISE

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
1. Big Trouble at Big Business	7
The Life Cycle of All Organizations—from Riches to Rags	13
Arrogance and Ignorance
From Those Wonderful Folks at Harvard and McKinsey	17
Business Schools
Management Consultants
2. Sense of Mission: Creating High Purpose and High Standards	25
Buel Messer	26
Strategy and Culture as Common Sense	31
What Are We Doing? How Are We Doing It?

Corporate Strategy, the Old-fashioned Way	33
A Humble Man with a Hundred Yen
Setting Strategy and the Spirit of Enterprise
The Entrepreneur as Strategist
Corporate Culture, the Old-fashioned Way	40
A Humble Man—Again
Creating Culture and the Spirit of Enterprise
The Entrepreneur as Creator of Culture
The Entrepreneur as Maintainer of Culture
A Long, Hard Look In the Mirror	52
Inspiration from a Radar Station in North Carolina
The Mission of the Victorian Liberals
God Help You If You're Not Proud of It	64
3. Customer/Product Vision: My Customer, My Product, My Self-respect	66
Vision?	66
The Customer/Product Vision of Disney	67
Disney Product Focus
Disney Customer Focus
Disney People—Connecting Products to Customers
The Real Magic	75
The Entrepreneur—Disney Magic
Harvard Scientist/Master Salesman
The Scientist Father and the Salesman Son
The Functional Organization—Death Knell of the Craftsman	84
Putting Humpty Dumpty Together Again
The Customer/Product Mind-Set—from Londonderry to Tokyo to Orlando	97

Growing the Old-fashioned Way—with Great Products and Great Customers	107
"My Customer, My Product, My Self-respect" Creating an Obsession for Customers and Products Confucius Says, "Get Yourself in Order"
"Loving" the Customer	117
"Loving" the Product	121
Great Moments in Enterprise	124
4. High-speed Innovation: The Necessity to Invent and the Freedom to Act	128
Living with Crisis and a Sense of Urgency	128
Racing Against Time in Biotech Building in Urgency Enterprise Bursts—the Amazing Turnaround Power of Innovative Action
The Seven Deadly Sins of High-speed Innovation	142
Colonel Sanders Goes to Japan
The Golden Rules of High-speed Innovation	160
The Necessity to Invent The Freedom to Act Chili's Recipe for Red-Hot Growth
Sir Brian—the Whirlwind of Wembley	175
5. Self-inspired Behavior: Ordinary People Doing Extraordinary Things	179
On Wings of Eagles	179
The New Entrepreneurs—"They Are Us!" Too Many Managers Spoil the Scottish Brew

Inspiring Yourself	187
An Ordinary Man Doing Extraordinary Things
Working Smarter and Harder
High Commitment and High Performance
Inspiring Others—Creating Mini-entrepreneurs	203
Who Says Americans Can't Make Cars?
Inspiring Entrepreneurial Commitment
Inspiring Entrepreneurial Performance
What If I Do and What If I Don't
Customer Consequences at Brinker International
Good for the Business, Good for the Soul	219
6. Transforming Bureaucracy to Enterprise: Dismantling the Twentieth-Century Corporation	222
Dismantling and Starting Over	222
Starting Over in Scotland
1. Keeping It Small—Dismantling Size and Structure
2. Keeping It Personal—The Heat of Consequences Down Below
3. Keeping It Honest—Integrity and Consequences at the Top
4. Keeping It Simple—The 80/20 Chinese Solution
5. Starting Over with the Spirit of Enterprise
Epilogue: The Enterprise of Nations	249
Enterprising Nations and Enterprising Companies	249
The Rich Get Poor—the Battle Britain Lost	251
The Poor Get Rich—Taiwan's Economic Miracle	254
Unleashing the American Spirit of Enterprise	260
Taking the American Entrepreneurial Spirit Global
Index	268