Who Gives a Shit? An Introduction to the New American Edition 1

CHAPTER 1. JIM CROW IN CYBERSPACE: The Unreported Story of How They Fixed the Vote in Florida 11

In the days following the presidential election, there were so many stories of African Americans erased from voter rolls you might think they were targeted by some kind of racial computer program. They were.

CHAPTER 2. THE BEST DEMOCRACY MONEY CAN BUY: The Bushes and the Billionaires Who Love Them 83

Who owns America? How much did it cost? Was the transaction cash, check or credit card?

CHAPTER 3. CALIFORNIA REAMIN': Deregulation and the Power Pirates 117

Jake Horton borrowed the company plane to confront his company's board of directors over accounting games and illegal political payments. Minutes after takeoff, the plane exploded.

CHAPTER 4. SELL THE LEXUS, BURN THE OLIVE TREE:
Globalization and Its Discontents 143

A cache of secret documents from inside the IMF, World Bank and World Trade Organization explains the inner workings of the iron triangle of globalization.

CHAPTER 5. INSIDE CORPORATE AMERICA 207

Fifteen thousand stockholders believe they hear Sam Walton speak months after he died—and other strange tales from Planet Dollar.

CHAPTER 6. PAT ROBERTSON, GENERAL PINOCHET,
PEPSI-COLA AND THE ANTI-CHRIST: Special
Investigative Reports 237

Award-winning investigative reports.

CHAPTER 7. SMALL TOWNS, SMALL MINDS 297

I live in one of those lovely little rural villages in America that still preserve good old American small-town virtues. So why has our local newspaper written two editorials requesting I get the hell out?

CHAPTER 8. KISSING THE WHIP: Reflections of an American in Exile 311

When the TV infotainment hypnosis wears off, when "Have a nice day" is an insufficient answer to getting screwed by the powers that be, Americans can surprise themselves, rise up, and say, "No, thanks, we won't kiss the whip that beats us." Thoughts in exile.
