

Koji Kobayashi

Rising to the Challenge

A riveting personal account of the development of a career

committed to excellence and NEC

CONTENTS

Preface to the English Edition	ix
Preface to the Japanese Edition	xiii
1 Childhood and Student Days	1
The Kobayashi Family of Hatsukari Village	1
Elementary School Days	2
Self-Education	4
Matsumoto High School	6
One-Upmanship	9
Electrical Engineering at Tokyo Imperial University	11
2 My Early Years at NEC	14
Assigned to the Engineering Section	14
The Power-Line Carrier Telephone System	16
The Nonloaded-Cable Carrier Telephone System	18
The Domestic Production Movement	21
A Business Trip Abroad	22
Quelling Labor Unrest	25
Becoming Plant Manager	27
The Great Air Raid	30

CONTENTS

3 Launching into the World Market	33
Under the Occupation	33
The Carrier Transmission System	36
Microwave Communications and TV Broadcast Systems	38
World Strategy	41
Overseas Markets	44
Computers	47
Semiconductors	49
The Beginnings of Satellite Communications	51
4 Tackling Internal Reform	55
Becoming President of NEC	55
Management Reform	58
Nationwide Decentralization	61
Operation Quality	64
Cultivating Overseas Markets	65
Launching the Satellite- Communications Business	71
Shake-Up in the Japanese Computer Industry	74
5 The Spirit of Self-Help	76
Becoming Chairman of the Board	76
The Personal Computer Business	79
C&C: The Integration of Computers and Communications	81
Software	87
Entering the Information-Services Business	90
The Commercialization of Fiber- Optic Communications	91
Pioneers on the Frontiers of Space	94
Research and Development	96
An International Corporation	99

CONTENTS

The Automatic Fingerprint- Identification System	103
A Sense of Mission and My "Ten Pointers for Executives"	104
Appendix	109
Works Cited	133
Index	135