

A CHANGING IMAGE

American Perceptions of the Arab-Israeli Dispute

RICHARD H. CURTISS

Published by the
AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL TRUST

Contents

1. Why Perceptions Matter	1
2. President Wilson's Fourteen Points and the Palestine Mandate	13
3. President Roosevelt and the European Holocaust	21
4. President Truman and the Creation of Israel	25
5. President Truman's Second Term and Post-Partum Depression	34
6. President Eisenhower and the Buildup to Suez	37
7. President Eisenhower's Second Term and the Coca-Cola Invasion	51
8. President Kennedy and Good Intentions Deferred Too Long	60
9. President Johnson and the Six-Day War	66
10. An Awkwardness for President Johnson, the Friend of Israel	82
11. President Nixon and the October War	95
12. President Ford and Sinai II	101
13. President Carter and the Camp David Agreement	105
14. A Word About Lobbies and Their Supporters	113
15. The Israeli Lobby—Where Goliath Works for Little David	116
16. Jewish Dissenters	120
17. The Arab Lobby—Their Own Worst Enemies or An Idea Whose Time Has Come?	125
18. American Business and the Arab Lobby	131
19. Christian Churches on Both Sides of the Arab-Israeli Dispute	136
20. Arab Diplomatic Activities	141
21. The Media	145
22. The Universities	159
23. Congress	165
24. President Regan and the Future	172
Appendix: The Evidence of the Polls, 1945–1981	186