

A HISTORY OF

MALAYSIA

Barbara Watson Andaya
and Leonard Y. Andaya

Second Edition

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
Preface to the Second Edition	xiii
Note on Spelling and Currency	xv
Abbreviations	xvi
Maps	xviii
Introduction: The Environment and Peoples of Malaysia	1
1. The Heritage of the Past	7
Reconstructing early Malaysian history: historiographical considerations	7
Early trade and the products of the Malay archipelago	11
Indian influence in 'the land of gold'	15
Chinese trade and the rise of early Malay-Indonesian entrepôts	18
Srivijaya and its rivals	21
The bases of Srivijaya's power	24
The weakening of Srivijaya's authority	28
From Srivijaya to Melaka: two differing accounts	33
Melaka's heritage	36
2. Melaka and its Heirs	39
The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries: historiographical considerations	39
In the tradition of Srivijaya	41
Reasons for Melaka's success	44
The nature of the Melaka state	46
Melaka's territorial expansion	52
Islam and the spread of Melaka culture	53
The Portuguese conquest of Melaka	58

Responses to the fall of 'Melayu' Melaka: Brunei, Perak and Aceh	60
Thai influence in the northern Malay states	65
The Dutch and Johor's ascendancy	71
3. The Demise of the Malay Entrepôt State, 1699–1819	79
The eighteenth century: historiographical considerations	79
The consequences of regicide in Johor	80
Bugis influence in the Malay states	83
Developments in the Peninsula outside Riau–Johor	88
Economic and political challenges in the eighteenth century	92
The growing influence of non-Malay groups in the Peninsula	96
Expansion of Bugis influence	100
English–Dutch rivalry and the impact on Malay trade	102
The curtailment of Bugis power and the decline of Riau	105
The resurgence of the Thais and the establishment of Penang	110
The demise of the Malay entrepôt state	112
4. 'A New World is Created', 1819–74	117
The nineteenth century: historiographical considerations	118
Relations between Siam and the northern Malay states	119
The treaty of 1824 and the division of the Malay world	125
The creation of new political units in Borneo	128
The campaign against piracy	133
Changing patterns of trade in the Malay states	136
Chinese domination of commercial agriculture and mining	139
Chinese–Malay relations	143
Malay conflicts and Straits Settlements involvement	147
The debate on 'civilization'	154
The Pangkor Treaty	157
5. The Making of 'British' Malaya, 1874–1919	160
Historiographical considerations	160
The extension of British control	161
Resumption of the 'forward movement'	167
The Residential system	174
The 'plural society'	177
Differing rates of development in the Protected States	181
The creation of the Federated Malay States	185
The expansion of British interests in Borneo	187
The incorporation of the northern Malay states into British Malaya	194
The inclusion of Johor under British rule	202
The new 'British' Malaya	203

6. The Functioning of a Colonial Society, 1919–41	210
Sources for the later colonial period	210
Establishing the framework for an export economy	211
The tin industry	214
Early plantation crops	215
The rubber industry	217
The palm oil industry	219
Padi (wet-rice) farming	220
Economic developments in North Borneo and Sarawak	222
Education under the colonial government	226
Education in Sarawak and North Borneo	241
Ethnicity and identity	243
Colonial government and the Malay rulers	247
Final years of Company and White Raja rule in Borneo	252
7. Negotiating a New Nation, 1942–69	256
Historiographical considerations	256
The Japanese Occupation and the immediate postwar years	257
The Malayan Union and the Federation of Malaya	264
The MCP and the Emergency	269
Independence	274
The Alliance	277
The formation of Malaysia	282
Maintaining the unity of the Federation	287
Growing ethnic tensions	290
Economic developments	293
Ethnic disturbances of May 1969 and Emergency
Government	297
8. Restructuring Malaysia, 1969–2000	301
Contemporary Malaysia: sources and historiographical problems	301
Economic and social restructuring under the New Economic Policy	302
Objective One: the eradication of poverty	303
Objective Two: removing the association of ethnicity with economic function	310
From agriculture to manufacturing	316
National development Policy and 'Vision 2020'	318
Environmental costs of development	321
The shape of politics post-1969	324
The Islamic factor	331
'The Melayu Baru (New Malay)'	333
Conclusion: Some Themes in Malaysian History	337

Contents

Notes	345
Further Reading	352
Glossary	372
Index	377