FOREWORD

I am pleased to learn that a Consultative Council of Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism and Sikhism has been formed to represent the common interests of the respective religions in the country and that the proceedings of the seminar held on 7th April 1984 is to be published.

I note that this Council was formally launched in Kuala Lumpur on 7th April, 1984 by Yang Amat Mulia Tunku Abdul Rahman Putra Al-Haj.

I take this opportunity to assure my non-Muslim subjects that they will not be discriminated against in any way, in the practice of their religion. I expect every Malaysian to learn to live in harmony and respect each other's custom and religion. Let every Malaysian act responsibly and be a true practitioner of his own particular religion so that there will be peace and goodwill.

Lastly, I am sure the Consultative Council will make a positive contribution towards this end.
