PARKINSON BRITISH INTERVENTION
IN MALAYA
PUSTAKA ILMU

This book tells in great detail the history of the crucial ten years (1867-1877) in the course of which Perak, Selangor and parts of Negri Sembilan were absorbed into the British Empire. It analyses the factors which led the British to intervene in the Malay Peninsula, and discusses the personalities of the men, both British and Malay, involved.

C. Northcote Parkinson was formerly Raffles Professor of History in the University of Singapore.
