

STREET DEMONSTRATIONS

Chedet.cc

29 April 2014

Tun Dr Mahathir Mohamad

1. Democracy is a great system, perhaps the best system for governing a country ever invented by man.
2. What can be better than a government of the people, by the people, for the people. And most of the developed countries are democratic, obviously benefiting from the system.
3. Does this mean that all countries which are governed democratically will be stable, prosperous and developed? The great democracies of the West seem to think so. Such is their faith in the system that they are willing to kill and destroy in order to promote democracy. They have now decided to bring about regime change in order to democratise the undemocratic countries. If you resist democratisation they will kill you and destroy your country. And so they did in Iraq and are doing so in the Arab countries and elsewhere.
4. It is assumed that the people, or at least the majority of the people would be wise enough to choose the most capable people to rule them. Unfortunately the people do not always choose the most capable. They may be influenced by race, religion, ideology and a host of other factors when electing their governments.
5. They may also choose because of money. In fact in most cases their choices are based on immediate personal gain rather than national interest.
6. Because of all these democracy has often failed to provide countries with good governance. Indeed it may result in dividing the people into parties and groups and pit them against each other.
7. If there are only two parties it is possible for one or the other to achieve a clear majority and to form the Government. But when there are more than two, it is entirely possible for no one party getting a clear majority of the seats in the legislature to form a Government.
8. In a two party system a small majority may weaken the Government due to fear of defection by its members. Only a Government with a big majority can provide stable and effective Governments.
9. As stated above when there are numerous parties it is likely that none would achieve a majority (50%+) to form the Government. A coalition may need to be formed in order to achieve a majority. Such a post-election coalition Government would always be threatened by defections of a coalition partner and so losing the majority. The Government would thus always be weak and unstable.
10. However, a pre-election coalition stands a better chance of winning a good majority especially if the coalition acts as a party fielding only one candidate in each constituency.

11. When this is done and the single coalition candidate is supported by all the coalition members it is likely that he will win. The chances are good for the coalition to win enough seats to form the Government. Such a coalition would be more stable and strong.

12. In Malaysia the Alliance and then the National Front coalitions which at times had as many as 14 parties have won in all the 14 elections held since independence. Such has been the success of the pre-election coalition formula that the opposition parties, despite their deep differences have decided to form their own coalition. The result is that in Malaysia there is now effectively a two-party system operating, It is therefore possible for a majority to be achieved by one or the other coalition in elections.

13. So far so good. But a basic principle in elections is for the loser to accept losing, to accept the result of the polls and wait for the next election. This is what happens in mature democracies. But parties in new democracies seem quite unable to accept losing. They dispute the result and they resort to undemocratic ways to overthrow the elected party or coalition.

14. Democracy upholds the rights of the minority. They must be protected. Therefore they are allowed to show their disappointment at losing in a variety of democratic ways. In Parliament they may stage walkouts when unable to block Government action. They may carry out active campaigning through the media and rallies to discredit the Government. Now they can make use of the alternative media to cause disaffection for the Government.

15. When sometimes they may resort to strikes and demonstrations.

16. All these are still permissible in a democracy. But now the strikes and street demonstrations have become so huge and prolonged as to paralyse the whole country.

17. In a non-democratic totalitarian state such massive demonstrations may be justified as there is no other way to change Governments. But now even when elections can determine changes in Governments, the losers in democratic elections have resorted to these disruptive acts.

18. We see in Egypt, Ukraine and even Thailand the opposition resorting to mass demonstrations in order to overthrow duly elected majority Governments. In Egypt and Ukraine the elected Government have been overthrown. Strangely even when new elections are agreed to by the majority elected Government, the minority opposition would not agree and choose to continue with street demonstrations. They claim the elections would be fraudulent.

19. The net result is continuous instability and sufferings by people and in particular the small businessmen. A situation akin to anarchy would prevail.

20. So far Malaysia has been spared the instability due to massive prolonged street demonstrations. But the signs are already there. Obviously there are Malaysians who would like to bring down the elected Government through demonstrations.

21. The series of Bersih demonstrations are obviously meant to excite public support to discredit the Government and eventually to bring it down. The Government is accused of cheating in previous elections so as to justify rejection of the coming elections should the Government party win. Massive and continuous demonstrations would then be held.

22. So far the numbers in the demonstrations are not big enough to paralyse the country. Though disruptive, the businesses, including the small street stalls have not been stopped. But the hope of the organisers of Bersih must be to attract millions to participate and to be daily affairs so that the usual daily life of the people would be disrupted.

23. A next step may be to occupy Government buildings.

24. The police would be provoked into taking violent actions. International news agencies and their television crew would then record the violence which would be broadcast throughout the world to discredit the majority elected Government. Of course violence on the part of the demonstrators would not be recorded or shown.

25. Malaysians have not responded to the call. Maybe they will in the future and Malaysia would join the ranks of unstable countries incapable of being governed and much less being developed.

26. The world needs to make up its mind. Do we elect Government by voting or do we install Government through street demonstrations?

27. Democracy as we can see is not perfect. But it is by far the best system of Government that we have. But like all systems, abuses can negate the objective.

28. If democracy is to survive and to serve the purpose for which it is devised, there must be some acceptance of the limits to the freedom that we consider democratic.

29. Free speech, free press, demonstrations and strikes must be circumscribed to some degree so that they will not destroy democracies in the name of democracy.

Today, black american can be president of the usa has proven that skin color does not matter as long as he or she can capture the dreams of the american masses. It took more than 10 yeras for the elected american president mr obama, to announce the result of expensive and long war battles in afghan and iraq to nail osama down. When I look at this issue, no matter what happened in the past wars, it is beastly to kill so many civilians for the seek of revenge to show their militant power. Just because we are muslim majority population, we must sympathize muslim like osama? Yes, mr obama made it happens, and americans do not need to engage wars for many generations to come. Will our next elected pm make it happen not to bribe voters with taxpayer monies to get elected for kany generation to come?

Sibotak, LKY has never left the seat for his son, please get that clear. His son made it because he works hard enough to prove his capability to pap members, and he was appointed by the 2nd pm of singapore to hold the ministerial responsibilities to prove h7s worth. I am wondering, if singapore is not lead by LKY, the hakka, will singapore be another penang? If malaysia is not lead by MM, mamak, will malaysia still remain a poor agriculture country with lots of idle land?

Tun

I specially dedicated the final revised version of my adaption of the famous Bengali song of the famous generations of medical students from the King Edward VII Medical College, Singapore to you. It is OK because my niece married a real skinny Bengali !

I know a little gentle lady from India

She had a set of rooms in Malaysia

An opportunity arose

She was at the fore-front of the caper

The caper grew with its well-fed and well-dressed minions

With the deed done

The ennobled little big gentle lady took the ultimate 36th step

Goodness gracious me

And glory of glories

Her life long dream of facing President Obama on equal terms achieved.

Malaysia Boleh !

Where else but our beloved Malaysia !

Salam Tun.

guan eng fought with Helen because she found out he has a mistress and bought a condo unit for their privacy. Thus Helen always shirk her ADUN duties in Malacca to watch the two-timing husband.

The adolescent son found out on the cheating father and started grappling the privacy of his opposite sex.

Then this “hang buat taik” thing called on everyone to enjoy whatever its mother can offer. Unfortunately it is very adamant and keep insisting “aku ini babi”, thus automatically nobody is interested to its obviously nauseating mother. Probably it will make a more pleasing offer to all.

I respect LYK because he is a man of his word. He resigned officially, and he will talk by invitation only because he truly respect the chair of president cum pm of singapore. He is very thin now, and his wish to meet with his maker will be realize soon. Though I am not singaporean, I wont do the running mouth, maksud, mulut jahat. Memalukan rakyat malaysia, negara malaysia dan pemimpin2 negara kita.

Salam Tun,

Well Written, observer. I hope Tun notice your comment and I think you hit the nail on the head. I completely agree with your 3-points with a small minor comment/amendment – I think DCA head did pretty good in comparison to the head of military/navy in which his “manglish” is just going to be an eye-opener to the rest of the world.

observer May 1, 2014 at 8:46 AM | Permalink

1. I agree that Democracy is perhaps the best system that we have today with some shortcomings. But these shortcomings are because of some people manipulating the election system to their advantage (crippling the effectiveness of system). This is probably because we think that some people might make the wrong selection and when there is not a clear big majority, the ones in power could influence it a little bit. 😊
2. In this article, it is mentioned “Unfortunately the people do not always choose the most capable.” This is wrong unless “the people” refers to the warlords in each political parties.
3. A two party system is good way moving forward. Agreed.
4. Now, let’s go into Street Demonstration which is the price that we have to pay as being democratic country.
5. Street Demonstration is not always bad (if it is a peaceful one) as it serve a purpose (it is seen as a strong, last resort of communication to bring a more meaningful change for the better). But, it can turn bad (if it is exploited). A car can bring one to its destination and a car can kill if it is abused (driven recklessly). Does it mean that we should ban everyone from driving?
6. No doubt there will be some inconvenience and disruption in the City when this is happening but if this is known well in advance, proper arrangement can be made by each person.

7. Street demonstration/protest would only able to garner enough support if the people see the issue as big enough to warrant to risk their life to go out to make their voice heard.

8. The question is how do we avoid any street demonstration from becoming violent. A recent move by PAS requiring all the participants to unmask their face is a very good move.

9. Instead of keep on harping on provocation by protester or accusing the violent act by police or foreign media misreporting on what is going on, can we not get all riot police to install a video recorder when they are on duty and these video recording could be used to understand and justify if any actions taken are done appropriately and warranted for or not.

10. I agree that Free speech, free press, demonstrations and strikes must be circumscribed to some degree. There is already a system that handles this in which one can be taken to court for their actions but in order for this system to work efficiently; these important institutions (Justice Systems, Corruption Agency, Election Agency, Police Agency) need to be able to operate fairly, independently and without fear (without being able to be manipulated).

11. As observer mentioned, if any changes that we want to see in the future, we need to look at the root cause and take it by its horn and start to make some gradual change starting from the important institutions (Corruption Agency, Universities & Education policy making).

12. It is time for the person who is given a responsibility to learn what it means by accountability and the meaning of responsibility.

Salam, Tun,

One rainy afternoon, I received the following email that I would like to share with you and my fellow Malaysians. However, I am not able to credit the Source or the Author, as it came uncredited. I hope its owner(s) would not mind me republishing it here without his or her consents. I wish to congratulate ‘the Writer’ for having ‘the mind of an Angel...’ Here goes:

“It was a busy rainy morning, about 8.30am, when an elderly gentleman in his 80’s arrived to have stitches removed from his thumb. He said he was in a hurry, as he had an appointment at 9.00am. I took his vital signs and had him take a seat, knowing it would be over an hour before someone would be able to see him.

I saw him looking at his watch and decided, since I was not busy with another patient, I would evaluate his wound. On exam, it was well healed, so I talked to one of the doctors, got the needed supplies to remove his sutures and redress his wound.

While taking care of his wound, I asked him if he had another doctor’s appointment this morning, as he was in such a hurry. The gentleman told me no, that he needed to go to the Nursing Home to eat breakfast with his wife. I inquired as to her health 🇲🇾. He told me that she had been there for a while and that she was a victim of Alzheimer's Disease.

As we talked, I asked if she would be upset if he were a bit late. He replied that she no longer knew who he was, that she had not recognized him in five years now. I was surprised, and asked him, "And, you still go every morning, even though she doesn't know who you are?" He smiled as he patted my hand and said, "She doesn't know me, but I still know who she is."

I had to hold back tears as he left. I had goose bumps on my arm, and thought, "That is the kind of love I want in my life." True love is neither physical, nor romantic. True love is an acceptance of all that is, it has been, will be, and will not be. With all the jokes and fun that are in e-mails, sometimes there is one that comes along that has a message. The happiest people don't necessarily have the best of everything; they just make the best of everything they have. I hope you share this with someone you care about...I just did! "Life isn't about how to survive the storm, but it is how to dance in the rain." We are all getting older...tomorrow is our turn..."

Sekian, Tun, terima kasih. Wassalam.

P.S.

Teach your children English, as poignant short stories like this educates and humbles us, and brings us back to reality...the Reality of Life! We were like this once, but sadly, today, we tried to belittle each other and worst, we tried to kill each other. Where have all those good traits gone? Is it due to progress or due to regress? I believe it was due to our education system past 10 years or so. Since then, our children reads, listens and watches only 'make believe stories', comics, tabloids, gossips, etc. that are (crabbily) written and dramatized in BM, which language they only knew!

Street demonstrations are organized by ngo supported by pr that do not get funding from umno baru.

According to Wain, writing his biography of Mahathir in 2010:

Rising living standards, together with Dr. Mahathir's showpiece buildings and outspoken defence of Malaysia's interests, contributed to a sense of national identity, pride and confidence that had not existed before. He put Malaysia on the map, and most Malaysians were pleased about it.... [However], he would not be able to escape responsibility for many of the problems likely to plague Malaysian society in the future, from creeping Islamization to corruption and inequality. For while he held Malaysia together for 22 years, the political-administrative system atrophied and decayed under his personalized brand of governance.

To be or not to be, malaysians will decide in 1 person, 1 vote in many general elections to come.

There is good media, but most media depends on action, brutality, war, etc. to gain audience for their news. Of course most media are fond of street demonstrations too, especially if there are scenes of explosions, rioters and the FRU going berserk, etc.

To counter the negative publicity the internet has provided a level playing field for anyone, big or small. In that regard well done to both Dato Najib and Dato Hisham.

Their twitter accounts have become their own media machineries. They manage to bypass the conventional media. They both report their side of the story in real time.

Tun

I wish to direct our enthusiastic bloggers to see (not look) at the mobs which rampaged in the different countries in the Arab Spring caper.

You will see the desperation in their eyes, their soiled clothing, the slim bodies, many young men, with middle aged men etc.( where got middle-aged old men in Malaysia !) Why ?

These unfortunate and suffering people in these Arab lands arer not actually demonstrating to have Western Democracy which they have NEVER experienced for hundreds of years. They could not because of the existence of the Ottoman Empire with existed in those lands from the 15th century to the 20th century -1919. Thereafter, their lands were carved up by the British and the French into what we now know as nations. And the British and the French propped up a despotic ruler who ruled over these Arab folks who now revolt because of the lack of jobs, food, schools, goods, money, medical facilities, KFC, T-shirts etc as compared with some Third World countries. The Arabs are intelligent and have been around for 5,000 years. The demonstrations are more for JUSTICE THAN DEMOCRACY OF THE WESTERN KIND WHICH THEY KNOW NOTHING ABOUT BECAUSE OF POLITICAL BONDAGE DOWN THROUGH THE CENTURIES.

On this note, I hope my fellow Bloggers now realise that there is a marked difference between the every ready 5,000 – 10,000 Malaysian demonstrators ( ring for a mob ) and those in the Arab lands.

THE MALAYSIAN DEMONSTRATORS WELL-FED AND WELL-DRESSED ARE DEMONSTRATING NOT FOR DEMOCRACY BUT TO DEMONSTRATE ON BEHALF OF OTHERS WHO WANT MORE AFTER HAVING TASTED THE FORBIDDEN FRUIT OF POWER AND MONEY – And now want morre of the same. THIS IS THE DIFFERENCE.

THE MALAYSIAN DEMONSTRATORS ARE TRUE AND TRUE PROXIES.

On the one hand, we see the Arabs suffering by the thousands or the other we see the Malaysian demonstrators – their 1st World physique and dress belie their true intentions – performing a’la Bollywood or Hollywood routine according to a written script. This cannot last under the hot sun and humidity conditions of Malaysia.

This is the difference between an Arab and a Malaysian demonstrator. One is for real. The other is for keeps.

Malaysia Boleh !

Where else but our beloved Malaysia !

Salam Tun,

Agreed that democracy is a great system, allow good government to be elected/re-elected and bad government to be replaced. Democracy also allow voter's representative to sit together at a legal platform to debate on issues that matters to the mind and heart of the voters.

Some elected representative has the tendency to bring their issues to the street by demonstrating at some central junctions in the capital city. We call this "Democracy". Democracy is not related to democracy. Democracy simply mean craziness to perform demonstration. Democracy leaders think that they could influence people perception by conducting democracy. They go all out – show their face to CNN, BBC , Al-Jazeera to gain cheap publicity and they tell the public that they did something "great" so that they will gain votes.

Too bad, democracy is bad for business. It harm Sogo business from Japan, Tesco business from UK and even Walmart , Mark and Spencer and etc from USA need to think deeply before investing in Malaysia.

Democracy is about perception. Well politics is mostly about perception. What about reality ? Voters need to weigh between perception and reality.

Opposition parties want the chance to govern and they got the chance to govern. They won the richest state in Malaysia – Selangor and they have the chance to prove whether the picture that they want to potray about how good they are, is true.

Reality – the opposition has failed. We have a big crisis in Selangor – water crisis and the way the Pakatan Rakyat parties handles this water crisis is very bad. Only their "totok" supporters think that the current water crisis is good.

Hey...., many industries are getting the brunt of the water crisis. Texas Instrument , Motorola, and many more.... and this is because the present state government is soooo good that they present us all here with the water crisis.

But Heyyyy.... the opposition parties did not promise that they will do good. They are democracy and democracy people do is to shout the voters that Barisan Nasional are bad.

So, the Democracy people has the rights to be bad because they did not promise they would be good. Do all you voters think that these cheap creepy Democracy to be voted in Selangor or voted out of Selangor in the next election ?

I think we should voted them out.

Sincerely,

Your citizen who does not take bath two days in a week due to this water crisis.

Haiya aso, if you want a law to prevent racism in this country, then the first thing that you should do is to stand in front of a mirror and ask yourself, am i a racist?

Ask the questions not once but many times my dear aso. If UMNO is a racist party, so is DAP, PKR (nepotism, cronyism, Anwar, Wan Azizah, Nurul Izzah....who's next? they have many Nurul in their family).

Aso, i beg to differ with you. The more racist you becomes, the more votes will goes to UMNO. he...he...he.

In this country, we do not have law to prevent or avoid racism, but malaysians have votes to deny racist party in every 5 years. I m not going to argue, but the more racist you are, the more votes you will loose. Cikgu kencing berdiri, murid kencing berlari. All the best to all political parties in malaysia.

Water rationing is a good exercise to appreciate value of water. But if you use it as political tool to rampas selangor, sudin, you will be in big trouble. Aku tak suka rasis macam mu, su din, jadi saya akan pangkah parti abu kerana aku ini babi. Tak suka? Ceraikan komponent2 parti bukan melayu.

Salam Tun.

Come home from work at 11:30pm last night. It happened again!

My taps are all dry. We never anticipate the water rationing exercise is still ongoing, and we are not prepared.

The flood waters which inundated half of Klang valley has just receded, and the cleaning-up works are still on-going.

As usual this Hang Buat Taik elected government will always be the same.

Even a shameless “I BARED ALL, YOU LIKE IT?” Cina doll called Lizzy is in the Exco lineup!!!

This Hang Buat Taik, that proud supermoron thing and self-declared “aku memang babi & my mother is available”, everything in life is politic.

Dear Tun,

With regard to the following point:

8. In a two party system a small majority may weaken the Government due to fear of defection by its members. Only a Government with a big majority can provide stable and effective Governments.

I would actually prefer the current status – BN retaining its rule with a simple majority. My reason is simple; as you once quoted, “Power corrupts. Absolute power corrupts absolutely.” BN is at its best when it is threatened, when the government knows that the country is at stake, that the next wrong move would lead to the downfall of the government. BN was at its lousiest when it felt that it could do anything in the world, say anything against anyone and nobody could do much.

While this has been a great country, there are things that we can do to make it be better, and we need the opposition politicians sometimes to make BN politicians to do anything in that direction:

- 1) there are simple steps that can be taken to improve election integrity; the simplest would be to make the EC independent of any government ministry.
  - 2) further, make the judiciary and the MACC independent too. This and point (1) would go a long way in muffling the opposition.
  - 3) implementation of Bumiputra-first policy needs to be rationalized. While this has greatly increased the number of middle-class Malays and Bumis and brought stability to the country, there are shortcomings. For years, there are many cases whereby higher-level managers, CEOs, directors, university professors, etc. have been appointed or retained or promoted beyond competence or in spite of their lack of competence, simply because “diaorang orang kita”. “Orang kita” here means Malay or Muslim, AND a conformist. Kalau orang Melayu tapi tak sebulu dengan current management pun take boleh dikira sbg “Orang kita”. Consequently, these people (who are promoted to the top post) lack the charisma, vision, lack understanding of what it means to manage (in corporate) or to be a scientist (in university context). They mismanage the organization, and they in turn hire or promote people based on “orang kita” paradigm. In the end, the organization rots..
- Something needs to be done to stop this, as the current practice will turn away not only well-meaning non-Bumis, but also non-conformist Malays.. And the opposition is charging at every opportunity to pinpoint this (eg. the MH370 and the bumbling DCA case).

Salam YAB & Yg diKasihi Tun,

1. Cuma golongan yang pendek akal dan tidak matang saja yang akan melakukan 'demonstrasi jalanan'. Cara ini memang sinonim dengan Pembangkang. Sikit-sikit ingin berdemonstrasi. Tak habis-habis menyusahkan orang lain. Tidak mungkin orang yang waras/matang mahu golongan sebegini untuk memimpin negara.
2. Kerajaan/KDN mesti tegas. Jangan setakat tahan, ambil keterangan dan lepas. Yg peliknya, bila masuk mahkamah pun boleh terlepas juga. Sekurang-kurangnya pendemonstrasi mesti dipertanggungjawabkan (kenakan denda) ke atas segala kerosakan yg berlaku bila ada demonstrasi jalanan; juga WAJIBKAN mereka untuk mengutip sampah sarap yang pasti bertaburan dgn banyak setiap kali ada demonstrasi. Mana yang boleh ditangkap/tahan, tahan saja, dan hantar mereka balik ke kawasan di mana mereka berdemonstrasi, dan wajibkan mereka untuk mengutip sampah.

3. Semasa CATUAN AIR di Selangor, mereka tidak pula berdemonstrasi. Nasib baik majoriti penyokong BN matang dalam berfikir. 'Syabas' kepada mereka yang mengundi PR (Penipu Rakyat)...ada yang merasa mandi (minum?) air lombong. Dalam beberapa hari ini, semasa catuan air, warna air pun sudah semakin kuning..

Terima kasih Tun.

*** Semoga Allah SWT sentiasa melindungi Tun sekeluarga. ***

Tun

My humble apologies. I submit a revised version of the ditty which is adapted from the Bengali song of the famous King Edward VII Medical College Singapore.

I now a little gentle lady from India

She had a set of rooms in Malaysia

An opportunity arose

She was at the fore- front of the caper

The caper grew with its well-fed and well-dressed minions

With the deed done

The little big gentle lady took the ultimate 36th step

Her life-long dream of facing President Obama on equal terms achieved

Notwithstanding any ambiguity

Malaysia Boleh !

Where else but our beloved Malaysia !

PM Korea resigned because of the tragic ferry accident. A lot of Malaysians ask why PM Najib does not resign for the disappearance of MH370? PM job is tough and stressful in a political system that is similar to that of USA. It is a good sign that PM Najib can still manage this stress, similar to that Mr Obama. Both of them got a very supportive wife and children. To me, I prefer PM Najib to be the PM, but if UMNO Baru veterans keep rocking the boat to get elected in the ministry, the chances of DS Anwar to be the PM will become reality.

By downgrading PM Najib will not help UMNO Baru party since it is split from within its party. Hudud capital punishment cannot be implemented in Malaysia because the Federal Constitution does not allow it, unless the Malay state is seeking to gain independence from the Federal Constitution. The reason BN can rule Malaysia for over 50 years since Merdeka is because of the Rukun Prinsip Negara is derived from the Federal Constitution. Fear mongering and vote bribing will no longer work as opposition parties hold the popular votes. PRC rich Chinese, just like the Malay, who have political connection with the ruling party are filthy rich overnight due to clearance of land for development, similar to what happened in early year 2000. Sikap macam Tuntuah ini will only make UMNO Baru lose more votes since MCA and Gerakan have lost non-Malay votes to opposition parties.

Sooner or later BN needs to face this challenge as our living cost is going up steadily year after year.

Take care Tok Det.

We need facts & truth to determine to make decision
Media had played an important tool in all
But Media had misleads its foundation of reporting facts
Media was to be transparent BUT now lacks many
It has become tools for the more  Influence & influencing people

Which therefor We are all in the Dark regardless of high tech Media

One may have the perfect system of voting
BUT one can never get it right
People voices if these voice are not from people with knowledge
With attitude for the right of the Nation
Will never conclude right decision
Thus one can never have the right answer to all
But its the way it should be
A definite truth is that
Human Intelligence never last yet it has its defects

Funny
Be it peoples elected but who are the people that make this important decision for our Nation
The Danger Is
We can have Crooks to be elected if it was elected by Crooks
