

07/08/1997

Too selfish to care about cleanliness

YOUNG AND UNCARING ... A refreshing cold drink is often just the thing to quench one's thirst while chatting up a girlfriend or making plans to go out with a mate - as this young man evidently believes, with his can of cincau (picture 1).

And this public telephone booth in Jalan Bangsar even comes with a shelf to put the can one when the drink is finished or when one's arm gets tired (picture 2).

However, in the midst of the lengthy conversation, there is a temptation to abuse this facility.

Oblivious to Prime Minister Datuk Seri Dr Mahathir Mohamad'd angry rebuke of people who leave their trash behind for "coolies" to clear, this youth, unfortunately, seems to have fallen into that category of selfish people and "forgotten" about his can (picture 3).

While a more considerate person might have gone the extra mile and even thrown away the drink containers left by previous telephone users, this youth appears to have much to learn about being a "real" man, as he prefers to join the club of litterbugs.

(END)