Foreign media should stop exploiting our problems

Wong Wee Ping

LIFE has never been the same for a commoner like myself and many others in Malaysia ever since the economic downturn hit our country, followed by the sacking of former Deputy Prime Minister Datuk Seri Anwar Ibrahim.

Most people have never been bothered about political developments in the world, but I believe things have since changed - concerned Malaysians have been keeping abreast with the political developments in our country through the news on TV, radio, Internet, newspapers, etc.

I believe more Malaysians now know about Joseph Estrada, B.J. Habibie and Chris Patten and what they said about Malaysia and our Prime Minister Datuk Seri Dr Mahathir Mohamad.

Like many others, I have been following very keenly news relating to Anwar shown on our TV and also by Television Corporation Singapore in its news segment.

Has anyone ever noticed that each time TCS showed scenes of street demonstrations, it would always show Anwar with the black eye waving to his supporters?

I hope the international media will stop exploiting our internal political problems.
