Malaysians in UK celebrate National Day with games, fair

P. Selvarani in London

A DAY of fun-filled games and a food fair was held at the Tun Abdul Razak Rubber Research Centre in Brickendonbury, Hertfordshire, yesterday as Malaysians from around the United Kingdom gathered to celebrate National Day.

Apart from telematches and games for the adults and children, the crowd, which also included British and other nationals, was able to sample Malaysian delicacies such as satay, mee bandung, nasi lemak and nasi dagang.

The guests included the newly-appointed British High Commissioner to Malaysia Graham Fry and his wife, who took the opportunity to get a glimpse of the Malaysian lifestyle and sample Malaysian food.

Some families brought along picnic baskets and barbecue kits to make the most of the Bank Holiday.

The event started with the singing of the Negaraku, followed by patriotic songs and Prime Minister Datuk Seri Dr Mahathir Mohamad's speech which was read by the Malaysian High Commissioner Datuk Amir Jaafar.
