Thumbs up for keeping family concept close to heart

Anna Lawrence

PICTURES speak a thousand words they say, and I think it was the pictorial on Barisan Nasional's "42-year track record" that led people to their choice in the election.

If you do not care for pictures, then the published message of our Prime Minister Datuk Seri Dr Mahathir Mohamad spoke volumes.

When you serve people from the heart, your years of service are not forgotten and the mud-slinging by newcomers will not affect you.

We saw our Prime Minister shone through the mud-slinging by the Opposition.

The BN has shown what family is. Its outreach to the community was simple, with their ceramah held in open fields where people, young and old, could come and listen.

This is what family is, when a price is not put on attendance.

We heard of the Opposition holding ceramah in hotels, where only paying audience can attend. Do we need to pay to belong to a family?

Are there people out there who would rather pay to belong to an elite family? Maybe this was to keep away children who might be a nuisance during the ceramah.

Syabas to the BN for having the concept of family. Let us enter the new millennium, enjoying the peace and harmony which our Prime Minister has secured for us.

Not everyone is fooled by a person wearing a long robe and donning a skull-cap who, while claiming to be an authority on religion, drives people away with what he does.

God's love cannot be sold as a commodity, and you do not have to pay to encounter God's love.

Let us then encounter God in this country that we live, and prevent the community from being destroyed by those who do it under the pretext of being thoroughly religious.

In the next five years, we look forward to more "track records" - Syabas BN!
