

08/06/2004

Treading cautiously

By Sonia Singh Rana

ALL that is going on in education - equality to the gates of pre-university, students who don't return home after completing their studies and Malaysians who are settling abroad - is just the tip of the iceberg.

We live in a multicultural society. When the name Malaysia pops up in conversation, magazines and newspapers, people instantly remember our much-respected former Prime Minister Tun Dr Mahathir Mohamad, the Petronas Twin Towers, Kuala Lumpur International Airport and the Multimedia Super Corridor.

As a nation we have overcome many obstacles in the past and are continuing to do so.

On the issue of students not receiving due recognition, I agree that it is appalling that Malaysia's creme de la creme "were being pushed aside". But issues like these, when published, can raise more than just eyebrows.

Let's not jump on the bandwagon and start something that will eventually turn out to be a blazing fire. Tread carefully. Have faith, hope and trust. The grass is not always greener on the other side of the fence.

SONIA SINGH RANA
London, UK

(END)