Fight against graft pays

N. Gangadharan

IN a democracy, people take their morals and their mores from their leaders. During his first few months in office, Prime Minister Datuk Seri Abdullah Ahmad Badawi, with his dynamic leadership, imbued with vision and understanding, with dedication and determination, has justified the trust placed in him by the people and especially by his mentor and predecessor, Tun Dr Mahathir Mohamad.

By ensuring leadership at all levels, even to the extent of seeing to the needs of those hit by floods, he is helping to release the potential and energy in the rank and file by means of personal impact.

His first frontal attack against increasing corruption in certain segments of the civil service seems to be paying dividends as we hear of fewer cases of corruption being reported.

There is every possibility of a civil service emerging in our country that could become the envy of people in this region.
