The art of being well informed

Successful people are selective
—they have to be. Today, more than ever before, being really successful in any occupation depends to a large extent on being well informed.

We offer you The Economist, the newspaper which is comprehensive, authoritative and respected throughout the world.

It will keep you well informed on what is important around the world today.

It will prepare you for the events that will or may happen tomorrow.

It will enable you to share an information source with men of responsibility throughout the world and, like them you will be able to use the information it contains to form your own opinions, to make decisions and stimulate ideas.

The Economist is the weekly briefing for men of responsibility.

Ensure that it becomes your weekly briefing by completing the order form below

The Economist

25 St. James's Street London SW1A 1HG

Telephone : 01-930 5155
Telex : 24344

Facts about the paper

Founded 1843

Ownership The Economist is published by The Economist Newspaper Ltd., an independent company formed in 1928.

Policy To report and discuss the whole of public affairs, especially politics, international affairs, business and economics. To express opinions, strongly when necessary, but to maintain as few prejudices as possible and certainly no party prejudices. To be topical.

Topicality Although The Economist is a weekly publication, it is printed on a daily newspaper schedule—late Thursday night—and much of the editorial is written or rewritten right up to the moment of going on the presses.

Editor The Editor of The Economist is Alastair Burnet. The editorial content of the paper is written anonymously, all opinions expressed being those of The Economist as a whole.

Circulation The Economist is bought in every country in the world. Nearly 50% of the total circulation is outside the United Kingdom. In 1962 the circulation was 69,000. Today it is more than 100,000.

WEEK 41 (276–90)	(277–89)	(278–88)

The art of being well informed

Successful people are selective —they have to be. Today, more than ever before, being really successful in any occupation depends to a large extent on being well informed.

We offer you The Economist, the newspaper which is comprehensive, authoritative and respected throughout the world.

It will keep you well informed on what is important around the world today.

It will prepare you for the events that will or may happen tomorrow.

It will enable you to share an information source with men of responsibility throughout the world and, like them you will be able to use the information it contains to form your own opinions, to make decisions and stimulate ideas.

The Economist is the weekly briefing for men of responsibility.

Ensure that it becomes your weekly briefing by completing the order form below

The Economist

25 St. James's Street London SW1A 1HG

Telephone : 01-930 5155
Telex : 24344

Facts about the paper

Founded 1843

Ownership The Economist is published by The Economist Newspaper Ltd., an independent company formed in 1928.

Policy To report and discuss the whole of public affairs, especially politics, international affairs, business and economics. To express opinions, strongly when necessary, but to maintain as few prejudices as possible and certainly no party prejudices. To be topical.

Topicality Although The Economist is a weekly publication, it is printed on a daily newspaper schedule—late Thursday night—and much of the editorial is written or rewritten right up to the moment of going on the presses.

Editor The Editor of The Economist is Alastair Burnet. The editorial content of the paper is written anonymously, all opinions expressed being those of The Economist as a whole.

Circulation The Economist is bought in every country in the world. Nearly 50% of the total circulation is outside the United Kingdom. In 1962 the circulation was 69,000. Today it is more than 100,000.
