As attempts to engage reasonably with the Sultan and the palace over the impasse in the appointment of the state secretary continue to be frustrated, the Selangor government is now looking to divine intervention.

The MB's residential surau last night saw the attendance of over 100 people at a special prayer session, seeking divine guidance on the matter

Other than the menteri besar and representatives from constituencies across the state, also present were Shah Alam parliamentarian Khalid Samad, executive council member Rodziah Ismail, Seri Seria assemblyperson Nik Nazmi Nik Ahmad and the MB's office communications director Badrul Amin Bahrom.

NONEIn his speech to the assembled worshippers prior to the prayer session, Khalid Ibrahim (right) asked for divine blessings for their cause.

"We want the power to be given the state government in order to ensure a transparent state administration," he said.

He also expressed hope that the Sultan will cooperate with the state in forging a better future for the state.

"I hope that his Highness will have it in him to consider the best candidate for the post," Khalid added.

The prayer session started after maghrib prayers and ended after Isyak prayers, concluding with a Yaasin recitation by the assembled congregation.
