The Selangor Pakatan Rakyat supporters club will organise a march through the streets of the royal town of Klang to pledge their loyalty to the Selangor sultan on Friday.

Over 400 people are expected to march from the Sultan Sulaiman Mosque in Kampung Jawa, Klang to the Alam Shah palace after Friday prayers.

The crowd will mainly be made up of deputations from villages across the state, as well as locals.

They will hand over a memorandum to a representative of the palace to express their support of the ruler.

Asked if they have obtained a police permit, the organisers said they are in the process of meeting the police, and that they have informed the state government and the palace.

The march is the latest in a series of demonstrations by both Pakatan and BN-linked NGOs in their bid to prove who is more loyal to the sultan.

Both sides are accusing the other of being traitors whilst professing their undying loyalty.
