YOURSAY 'It was never about you asking a question. It was your arrogant and ranting way that ticked us off.'

Jessie Ooi: Call me Ms Tow Truck if you like

Truth Seeker: MCA Selayang coordinator Jessie Ooi, you got it all wrong. People do not mind or stop you from expressing your views.

It's the way you carried yourself (index finger pointing and the bellicose manner you demonstrated during the Chua Soi Lek-Lim Guan Eng debate) which got most people pissed off.

Your mannerism spoke for itself. Take a course on interpersonal skills. It will do you good.

1M: "Maybe next time, no one would dare to ask questions at debates any more," she joked.

Jessie, you don't seem to get it. People will still ask questions at debates, but after your episode, they will be more prepared, and better-behaved.

I'm sure you won't shout at any Umno or PAS leaders, so give the same respect to Lim Guan Eng, the CM of Penang.

Nik V: It appears from the way you sound, your political ego should be able to keep you going.

After the incident which you brought upon yourself, an individual with humility would truly have looked into their hearts and understood the real reason they received such horrible criticism.

It was never about you asking a question. It was your arrogant and ranting way that ticked us off.

If you don't change your attitude, don't expect people to change their opinion of you or calling you Ms Tow Truck as many Malaysians are fed up with Umno-MCA-MIC-BN's crass, cronyist, corrupt and racially-based brand of politics.

Musang King: I expect those who hold public office to serve with honour, honesty and humility. Why don't just apologise and move on? Are you too arrogant to right a wrong?

3rdForce: Ooi is relatively new in politics, and she has admitted her lack of composure during the highly electrified debate and we hope she will learn to be better.

After all, what she and the majority of other politicians are doing, is for the good of the rakyat. Let us wish her well.

Whatsup: Jessie, whatever it is, please truly help our communities, regardless of race. We are all Malaysians. Just help, and your actions will speak louder than your words ... not the way you've done at the debate.

Anyway, I'm sure you're remorseful by now. I'm sorry, I've always been critical and distrustful of MCA. You know it, we know it, everyone knows it.

Many many years ago, I was told by the head of a local MCA branch that the party will not do anything that doesn't make money. With that kind mentality, how can I expect you to be any better?

Voteforchange: This person is not capable of apologising for her misbehaviour because she thinks shrieking like a mad woman against a CM, who has done more good for the rakyat and for less reward than all of the leaders in MCA, is just asking a question.

Someone like this is incapable to be grateful to anyone else. This thanksgiving dinner and her supposed gratefulness is all just pretense. She is so full of herself that she thinks nothing at thumbing her nose at the rakyat.

She mocks the people - young and old - and says she doesn't care. She shows that she is ill-mannered, ill-bred and ill-advised.

The rakyat don't need her and her party, which has no one better to appoint as the Selayang coordinator.

Punish her by punishing her party. Punish MCA by rejecting BN and its master, Umno. Stop Lynas, save Malaysia. Stop BN, change Malaysia!

Artchan: One of the pillars of good character, irrespective whether you are Chinese, Malay or Indian or whatever race in this world, is that if you make a mistake and offended someone, you apologise and move on.

For Jessie to go on harping on this issue as if she has done no wrong, she is in fact disgracing her parents.

Paul Warren: It sounds like she is vying to become a candidate at the next GE. Want to take on Teresa Kok? Or maybe Hannah Yeoh or Elizabeth Wong?

Anyway, with the publicity she has got and with MCA's mentality and Chua Soi Lek's proclivity for women of ill-repute, I'd bet Ms Tow Truck will be a candidate somewhere.

Tel: I still fail to understand why this woman refused to apologise? Is it someone in the MCA asking her not to do so, or is it that MCA member are so arrogant that they do not know how to say sorry.

After reading this news article and watching both the videos, I have come to one conclusion - MCA leaders still think it is justified to humiliate and even verbally abuse their political opponents.

Urkidding: Ninety-nine percent of the comments posted in Malaysiakini condemn this unruly woman. And she still thinks she is popular! What kind of cow sense has she.

This simply shows she is dumb and stupid, just like her questions. I'm not going to waste my time talking about this woman, she is not even fit to tow a truck.

Kgen: Hello Ms Tow Truck, if you don't recognise the demeaning nature of the nickname, you deserve it.
