

And whose tool are you, Hasan Ali?

YOURSAY 'Bersih is a tool for all Malaysians to press for clean and fair elections. You, Hasan Ali, on the other hand is the tool for...'

Bersih 3.0 an opposition tool, says Hasan your sayCloudnine: Hasan Ali, the man who dreamt of being menteri besar of Selangor, speaks again. Now the opportunist is out to grab attention. By the way, have you caught the so-called proselytisers?

This man is a strange opportunist. On former minister Shahrizat Abdul Jalil's RM250 million cow-condo, the RM500 million Scorpene submarines commission to Perimekar, ex-MAS chief Tajudin Ramli's RM590 million debt to MAS that was written off, he kept very quiet.

It's the same with Perkasa chief Ibrahim Ali. These guys are hot-air blowers, they never go for the issues that affect the rakyat. They only go for issues that will make the media publish their photographs.

Trueglitter: The rhetoric by Hasan Ali that Bersih 3.0 is "merely an opposition tool" would serve to show himself in the death throes of an embittered politician desperately struggling to keep himself alive amid the hopelessness of his unfortunate circumstances.

His heavy fall from grace upon being sacked from PAS and with his aspirations to ascend the political ladder to be a menteri besar dashed, there appears to be no end to his onslaught of condemnations and demonisations of the opposition, particularly Pakatan Rakyat.

Though Hasan Ali has not shown his hand to which party he chooses to belong, his body and vocal language is unambiguous indication that he is firmly speaking the language of a ruthless Umno-BN stooge, hell-bent in endearing himself to his would-be political masters with determined vengeance to create havoc to the opposition.

Kelantanese: Bersih is a tool for all Malaysians to press for clean and fair elections, which have been rigged by Umno-BN for donkey years.

You, Hasan Ali on the other hand, is the tool for Umno-BN to achieve their objective to win the election at all cost. Shame on you.

Malaysian Bersih: Hasan, can you comment something about the corruption cases happening in the country?

For example, the most recent video clip of the Election Commission (EC), National Registration Department (NRD) and Umno getting students to change their voting addresses to a marginal constituency so as to vote for BN, with all expenses paid for by Umno - any comment about that?

Are you not worried about it or do you think they are doing good according to the tenets of Islam? Also, can you find out who that minister who paid RM1.5 million for some good action with another woman, who is not his wife, is?

And what about giving ICs to foreigners, do you not worry?

Submariner: Hasan Ali is an idiot - don't you forget you were previously part of the opposition too. Sadly now, you are just an Umno lapdog.

Kairos: Hasan Ali's opinions count for nothing. By trying to pit himself against Bersih chief S Ambiga, Hasan is tying a knot around his neck.

He is so thick-skinned that he does not realise that he is widely viewed as a scumbag and that nobody is paying any attention to what he is saying.

Who cares what Hasan Ali's Jati says or stands for. In contrast, Bersih's S Ambiga is well-respected and the rakyat pays great attention to what she says. Hasan Ali is a lightweight compared to her.

Mohd Sivakumar Abdullah Pillay: Hasan, you are a sore loser - not too long ago, you supported Bersih, and all of a sudden you now say you don't support Bersih.

When you were in PAS everything was okay, now that you had gotten yourself kicked out, you say it is an opposition ploy to attract attention.

Fairnessforall: Stupid Hasan, who cares about what you are 'comfortable' with. You could not even prove your claims about the Christians and you have the cheek to come out and show your face.

I don't think anyone is interested in your views or opinions because we all think you are an idiot.

Paul Warren: Hasan has embarrassed Islam when he promised 100,000 at the first Himpun rally that turned out to be fewer than 5,000. Now he is so jealous that this very secular group may bring in more Muslims than he can even dare to count.

Multi Racial: Good. I am happy that Hasan Ali is not with us on the April 28. Otherwise, the event will be tainted by him.

He is not just a racist but a selfish and power-crazy politician who will say and do anything for his personal gain. He even makes use of God's name for his own gain.

Lin Wenquan: Thank you, Hasan Ali for reassuring us that Jati supports clean and fair elections.

The EC has rejected attempts to discuss with Bersih at every twist and turn with the flimsiest of reasons. The parliamentary select committee (PSC) formed to address the issue in a "serious" manner was hijacked by Umno-BN and skirted the core issues for EC's reform.

So with all avenues exhausted and having the door slammed in its face by a recalcitrant and perfidious EC, Bersih is mandated by those rakyat who are clamouring for free and fair elections to act on their behalf.

Heaven forbid, Bersih 3.0 is not an opposition publicity stunt as you claim. Don't worry about our students being 'used' by the opposition. They are intelligent and mature enough to decide for themselves the future they want.

Instead you should worry whether Umno has a place for you in the coming GE. Come on board with us on April 28 and perhaps you may harvest a few sympathetic votes instead.
