An accounts executive who participated in the Bersih 3.0 rally in Kuala Lumpur has related how the police hauled him out of a hotel café and made him face a gauntlet of beatings until he arrived at a holding area at Dataran Merdeka.

"(A police personnel) grabbed my shoulder. He pulled me from my hotel to Dataran Merdeka," claimed Hee Jenn Wei, 25, who was wearing a Bersih t-shirt .

"Along the way, there were other police officers When they saw me, they charged and kicked me in the leg."

Hee was testifying before the public inquiry being conducted by the Human Rights Commission of Malaysia (Suhakam) into alleged human rights abuses during the rally on April 28.

Hee said all this happened after the crowd had dispersed and he was sitting with a friend in the café of the hotel where he was staying.
