VOXPOP 'PM, instead of harping on online media, could we have your thoughts on the culture of hatred and ethnocentrism of a number of mainstream media?'

Gov't will not license online news portals, pledges PM

vox populi small thumbnailHolden: These are interesting comments for the PM to make at home regarding liberalism and pluralism, while at the same time he proclaims long and loud in international circles that pluralism is the source of the strength of the country.

And instead of constantly harping about perceived culture of hatred of the online media, could we have your thoughts, PM, on the culture of hatred and ethnocentrism of a number of mainstream print media?

Cala: PM Najib Razak, please think before you talk. First, I am not aware that the concept of true liberalism and pluralism brings hatred. This must be a new theory privy only to Najib. But I am aware of self-interested parties bent on sowing hatred amongst people.

Second, why talk about control all the time? Why not talk about cultivating a more inclusive culture for Malaysia?

Not Confused: Mr PM, your words mean absolutely zero to me or anyone else with half a brain in this country.

I repeat here your words: "We will enforce the law to ensure no one uses the race or language card to spread disharmony in the country or do anything that is against parliamentary democracy."

We will now monitor your every word and deed in the coming weeks to ensure that you actually follow up on this pledge since in the past, you have continued to either lie or maintain an inelegant silence when trashy mouthpieces of yours like Utusan Malaysia are allowed to spew venom and hate against anything non-Malay.

Bumiasli: If Najib really means what he says, he should take immediate action on all the newspapers and individuals who are so boldly making racists remarks. If such people can still get away with their actions, then Najib will only lose more respect from the rakyat.

A PM should never say things which he does not mean.

Pahatian: Well said, but talk is cheap. Do you really mean what you say? What about what you have said about the 'Chinese tsunami'? What about the showing 'Tanda Putera' and the making of a TV series based on 'Interlok'?

Aren't all these point to one thing - racism? Better don't open your mouth the next time if you don't mean what you say.

Cogito Ergo Sum: So far, the mainstream online news portals, a term I refer to Malaysiakini, The Malaysian Insider and Free Malaysia Today, have been responsible and faithful to the notion of nationhood, unity and equality.

They are manned by professional journalists who know where and when the line cannot be crossed. They are the only avenue left for reliable information.

In sharp contrast, the likes of Utusan, New Straits Times, The Star and the whole jingbang of MSM (mainstream media) newspapers are purveyors of hate and racial and religious bigotry.

You have laws to deal with such extremism and yet you want to turn your sights on the truth seekers? Deal with these first.

Lim Chong Leong: Many Umno bulldogs have done and said much to fuel racism, but nothing has ever happened to them. This man dares to say and not do.

Doc: "We will enforce the law to ensure no one uses the race or language card to spread disharmony in the country or do anything that is against parliamentary democracy," Najib said.

What Najib saying is that spreading hate and racism is exclusively Umno's right.

Chinese bashing not very Islamic, Muslim group told

Wira: Prime Minister Najib Razak and BN tried to bribe the Chinese by offering goodies, including the Psy concert and the numerous BN-sponsored dinners, booze and concerts all over Penang, including a promise to turn Han Chiang College into a university college.

But even after all this, the Chinese in Penang gave him a resounding "no". The Chinese did not rebuff the Malays by not voting for BN.

They rejected the corrupt, as every holy book would have advised them so. You could say they voted resoundingly for PAS' version of Islam.

Overlord: The Chinese broke their promise to support BN in the last general election? This might be partly true, as MCA and Gerakan had claimed to Najib that they represent all of the Chinese in Malaysia in their 'syok sendiri' manner.

That's why the Chinese voters really had no idea that they had made "promises" to Najib.

Fair&Just: Did the Chinese expressly promise to support BN?

Perhaps those Chinese who are mentally retarded, and are so mentally handicapped that they could not differentiate between a good and bad government, would support a corrupt, bigoted, criminal, tyrannical, dictatorial, unscrupulous and unconscionable regime.

Alzhsh: When did the Chinese ever promise to support BN?
