A NGO leader has revealed an excerpt from a documentary that purportedly proves Sarawak Report editor Claire Rewcastle-Brown had worked with Lester Melanyi.

Ramesh Rao said the documentary was on Sarawak Report and sister organisation Radio Free Sarawak.

The video depicted Rewcastle-Brown and Lester sitting together.

"This video was taken down. This showed how she and Lester (had once) worked together," Ramesh (photo) told a press conference today.

Rewcastle-Brown had previously denied that Lester worked for Sarawak Report but acknowledged that he had a brief stint with Radio Free Sarawak.

She also branded Lester's allegations as "ravings of the mentally unbalanced bankrupt" and is mulling legal action against him and BN strategic communications director Abdul Rahman Dahlan.

Lester, in a video confession, had accused Sarawak Report of fabricating documents related to 1MDB to smear Prime Minister Najib Abdul Razak.

He also implicated several opposition leaders.

Ramesh had filed a police report based on the video confession, which was then highlighted by Rahman.

Meanwhile, Rahman took a swipe at those attacking Lester's credibility, including focusing on his status as a bankrupt.

He posted an image on Twitter to show how detractors did not criticise two others who also claimed that the documents were tampered.

This included Thai police spokesperson Lt-Gen Prawut Thavornsiri and Protection Group International managing director Brian Lord, who was a former deputy director of CyberSecurity and Strategy of UK Government Communications.
