

Next 2 weeks critical to reduce infections to below 4k - Health DG

Malaysiakini

13 June 2021

Bernamea

The next two weeks of the lockdown are critical for the country to reduce the number of daily Covid-19 infections to below 4,000, said Health director-general Dr Noor Hisham Abdullah.

He said during the period, it is important for everyone to cooperate to help flatten the Covid-19 curve of infection as the number of daily cases is still on the rise.

At the same time, he was disappointed that some people are still travelling unnecessarily and gathering to celebrate events.

"This is irresponsible," he said on Twitter last night.

Malaysia recorded a total of 5,793 new daily Covid-19 cases yesterday compared to 6,849 cases the day before while the total number of daily recoveries in the last 24 hours hit 8,334, the highest since the pandemic hit the country.

The government on May 28 announced the first phase of the total lockdown on social and economic sectors nationwide for a period of 14 days from June 1 to 14.

This has been extended to June 28.

- Bernama

Copyright © 1999-2012 Mkini Dotcom Sdn. Bhd

Source: <https://www.malaysiakini.com/news/578720>