Prime Minister Ismail Sabri Yaakob will lead the Malaysian delegation at the Asean-China Special Summit to commemorate the 30th anniversary of Asean-China Dialogue Relations tomorrow which will be held via video conferencing.

The Foreign Ministry said the summit will focus on the review and future of Asean-China cooperation, including the enhancement of relations for a comprehensive strategic partnership.

Wisma Putra said China has been one of the most dynamic partners of Asean with cooperation and collaboration in various sectors.

"Malaysia's participation at this summit reflects its commitment to further deepen Asean-China dialogue relations," it said in a statement today.

Wisma Putra said Malaysia hopes the summit will pave the way for the leaders to agree on mutually beneficial outcomes towards promoting peace, stability, security and prosperity in the region.

It said the premier will be accompanied by Foreign Minister Saifuddin Abdullah, International Trade and Industry Minister Azmin Ali, Tourism, Arts and Culture Minister Nancy Shukri as well as senior government officials.
