

'Why not an UmnoLink discount card too?'

'Maybe Umno can introduce UmnoLink or BumiLink discount cards so that we have a 7 percent discount for petrol, sugar, rice, flour and other necessities.'

And discounts for BMWs, first-class travel too

The Malaysian: Senator Tunku Abdul Aziz Ibrahim speaks the truth. You are a small percentage of a true blue blood Malaysians of the Malay race who are upright and true to your principles in life. I am very proud of you. On behalf of myself, my family and our country, I thank you from the bottom of my heart.

We need more Malaysians of every race to speak up and to speak the truth. We are an educated nation. We cannot allow PM Najib Abdul Razak, his deputy Muhyiddin Yassin and Umno Youth chief Khairy Jamaluddin to spew lies without challenging them.

"Najib had warned Pua against causing dissatisfaction and anger against Malays and becoming a threat to public peace."

Can our PM clarify please who is dissatisfied and who is angry? What about the majority non-Malays who have been subsidising the rich Malays?

Mr Bond: The poor bumiputeras only have seven percent discount when purchasing homes. Maybe this can be increased to 10 percent. There is no point giving the rich discounts. If you can afford to purchase a RM1 million home, then there is really no need for a discount.

Steven For Malaysia: Yes, we should help the bumiputera poor effectively in the spirit of love, but not someone who wants to buy high-end houses and rich businessmen who want to buy shophouses.

Those people who are protesting against this revision are too greedy. They will antagonise all sound-minded Malaysians.

Lover Boy: It is the Umno Malays who want this discount. I think it is shallow that we only limit it to luxury property. I think to help the Umno Malays, you need to go across the board and make sure that the seven percent discount appears in everything: petrol, first and second-class travel, purchase of cars, airplane tickets, jewellery, necessities like sugar, rice and flour, etc.

We have the BonusLink care, maybe Umno can introduce an UmnoLink card or BumiLink card too. As Umno Malays and Muslims are one, we might as well extend the benefits to non-Malay Muslims such as Riduan Tee Abdullah.

Sorry, East Malaysian bumiputeras are not eligible for you are supposed to be affluent.

Jiminy Qrikert: MCA leader Loh Seng Kok cannot see the difference between Pakatan Rakyat and BN. He comes from a party that's deaf, dumb and blind to the rakyat. MCA doesn't dare to squeak any objection to Umno. On the rare occasions that it dares to whimper, Umno stomps on it. Loh calls this 'consensus'.

Even if Abdul Hadi Awang had spoken against Tony Pua's suggestion of doing away with the seven percent discount, it is good for the rakyat to know. Then, we will know who the sincere partners of Pakatan are and if they see issues in very racist ways.

But Hadi Awang did not say that - he said, don't take away the seven percent discount from the Malays who are majority of the poor. I totally agree with that. Hadi also said that "we are obligated to defend those of other races who are poor and should be protected."

MCA is simply trying to pit Chinese against Malays.

Loyal Malaysian: "There's certainly nothing enshrined in the constitution which says that Malays are entitled to discounts for luxury properties costing millions of ringgit." Well said, Tunku Aziz! All other statements by the Umnoputras are just sabre rattling.

Mohd Hazwan: Bravo, Tunku Aziz. It maybe a rule in Umno to do injustice unto others. Malays like you should helm Umno and teach them a bit of values before our race loses whatever conscience we have left for other human beings. Wasalam.

Voice Yup: The savings fund mentioned by Tunku Abdul Aziz should be used to help the Malay poor only. Priority and higher discounts given to those hardcore poor and followed up progressively for those in low-income, low-medium and medium-income brackets.

Dappy: Tunku, we salute you for defending Tony Pua from the attacks of the PM, DPM and greedy Umnoputras who still demand for discounts inspite of being filthy rich. Tony Pua is perfectly right to say that the discounts should be for the deserving poor only and not the rich. It is clear that Umno's agenda is to help themselves to the country's coffers. Helping the poor is only a pretense.

P Dev Anand Pillai: Hello Mr Loh Seng Kok, do you remember when Umno Youth were at your doorstep asking for you to apologise? At least in Pakatan, they agree to disagree. But in BN, you just apple-polish and quickly kow-tow. Just admit the fact that you guys are just as how Lee Kuan Yew had described - placid and compliant.

Lusiapa: Loh Seng Kok, your reaction and comments to a non-existent problem clearly shows that you are all out to grab public attention even to the point of making a fool of yourself once again.

It is very clear from the above report that Hadi Awang did not object to Tony Pua's noble proposal. That you should see it otherwise explains why you were dumped so unceremoniously before the last general elections. Please learn to accept the fact that your days as a politician are long over.

Anonymous: Loh Seng Kok is typical of MCA leaders whose words and deeds do not represent Chinese, Malays' or Indians' sentiments. They represent Umno's battle cry. The NEP as it is today is the result of MCA's silence all these years. And now that a few truly Malaysia-loving politicians voice their views over this special privilege for the well-heeled Malays, Loh, instead of supporting it, is poking at it.

Gen2: In Islam, it is 'haram' to be a free-loader. Umno and Perkasa want a free lunch for bumis, while other Malaysians work hard and pay their taxes.

Phan Gaik Cher: I personally know of many self-proclaimed bumis who buy luxury properties, sometimes en bloc, at a discount and sell to non-bumis at full developer's price. If this is not blatant abuse of the benefit then what is it?
