Vandals have splashed red paint on the walls and back door of a new surau in Taman Pulau Impian Temiang, near Seremban.

Negri Sembilan DAP Youth head Anthony Loke tweeted about this earlier today.

When contacted, he said the surau was completed a month ago and has been in use for the last few weeks. However, the compound has yet to be fenced up.

Surau committee members noticed the red paint when they arrived to open the surau for subuh (dawn) prayers before 5.45am today.

"Several liquor bottles (were found) with red paint in them," said Loke.

The committee members lodged a police report soon after. A police investigation team then went to the site to take photographs, secure evidence and take the witness statements..

Loke said he visited the site with party colleague and Temiang assemblyperson Ng Chin Tsai and Sigamat assemblyperson Aminuddin Harun.

He urged the police to solve the matter as soon as possible, given recent anger over racist remarks elsewhere in the country.

"(This is to) prevent irresponsible persons from using this issue to pursue their own agenda. If not handled properly, it may spark tension in society," he cautioned.
