Hishammuddin Hussein says the turmoil in Parti Keadilan Rakyat (PKR), especially during the party elections, should open the people's eyes to what PKR's struggle is about.

The Umno vice-president and Terengganu liaison chief (left) said from what they had seen, the people should be able to judge which party was better for their own future. He was speaking after attending a gathering with Marang and Kuala Nerus divisional leaders, Kuala Terengganu, today.

Hishammuddin said he would ensure that Terengganu would learn from BN's defeat in Terengganu in the 1999 general election which saw the state fall into the hands of PAS so as to prevent a repeat.

He said he would meet with the leaders of all the eight Umno divisions in the state to discuss Terengganu Umno's role in the context of race relations, the Malay agenda and the survival of the party.

"It's time for us leaders to go to the ground together to meet the people and work hard for them," he added.
