'We as Malaysians voted Pakatan in Selangor. So why can't they just leave it that way? You want Selangor back, then convince voters to vote for you.'

PM's promise: Target Selangor

Taking no nonsense: We'll not take it lying down. The people of Selangor are no fools, so be warned - anything that happens if our democracy is undermined should be lain on the shoulders of BN.

Rocky: Selangor will not be so easy. Even if a few jump, but the rest are committed to Pakatan Rakyat, it won't happen. Hasan Ali can go if he wants but not all in PAS will follow him.

Loyal Malaysian: I suppose in a political war, all's fair! The Pakatan leaders in Selangor cannot plead ignorance of Najib's intentions. If they still lose control, they have only themselves to blame.

P Dev Anand Pillai: First and foremost, one would have to face the people of Selangor. The people are not stupid. Targets can be set while the analysts and academicians who have no shame showering heaps of praises on this agenda should throw their academic credentials down the river. One can't keep fooling the people all the time. The people in Selangor are not going to be fooled like the folks in Perak.

Koh Jen Yen: This is the lowest thing that any politician can do: intimidate and bribe people to support you. This is what a totalitarian nation would do. We as Malaysians voted Pakatan in Selangor. So why can't they just leave it that way? You want Selangor back, then convince voters to vote for you.

'Use ISA to protect Malay-Muslim rights'

Dood: "Excite racial sentiment by way of writing, statement or speech so as to cause conflict among Malaysia's ethnic groups." Oh, they want to shut down the Malay press? These racists are fools.

Vi: I am as ordinary non-Malay citizen getting very worried. Why has BN become racist? Why is it only always talking about Malays? Are Chinese, Indians and other races not important? I am worried and scared to see BN. Maybe that's why I feel PAS is more approachable. They are not as racist as BN is nowadays.

Organiser: Cow's head a mystery

Cheong Sai Fah: As a non-religious person, I find the latest 'cow's head' episode most disconcerting. The reasons given by the protest group should not be allowed to stand unchallenged. First, their action goes against the widely proclaimed view that Islam is tolerant.

Why the huge protest about the Hindu temple in the vicinity when the houses of worship of the three monotheistic religions are within an earshot of each other in Jerusalem? Second, by the same logic, should mosques be built in non-Muslim majority areas?

Rayfire: This is just twisting and turning of facts. Pictures and videos don't lie. This incident is uncalled for. The banners you people carried already say enough about your stand. So don't even attempt to lie. Thanks for reminding us that there are some who are uncivilised even in the modern times.

Terrence: I'm still waiting for the police to take action! People get arrested for candlelight vigils but there is no action for something like this? We showed the world how uncivilised Malaysia is by the action of a few stupid sick people! Great Merdeka gift!

Be impartial, Kg Buah Pala villagers urge police

Lim Boo Seng: M Sugumaran and gang, I am sick of this Kampung Buah Pala thing! I was a strong supporter, but now you have lost my support. Your true colours are showing. The state government is sincere in helping Kampung Buah Pala but you are just out to create trouble for Pakatan

Ken: Sugumaran, quit blaming the state government and go to Umno for help as you've announced. The state government is not responsible for the land transfer that was done quietly by civil servants 19 days after Pakatan took over. After abusing, bad mouthing, blaming and threatening the state government while ignoring the real culprit, Gerakan, you are still thick skinned enough to ask the state government for help.

KSS: It is no use quarrelling and blaming anyone. Some mistakes may have been inadvertently made while trying to help these poor people get back their property from the greedy BN thieves. Now Chief Minister Lim Guan Eng must keep his election promise and go all out to use the state's administrative and legal powers to help these simple people from being evicted and prevent their houses from being demolished.
