Prime Minister Najib is not serious in wanting to implement what he espouses since taking over the premiership.

Whatever he has done thus far is with no consideration for the future. His mind, heart and soul is focused on how to win big in the coming 13th GE and nothing else.

He laid out his economic plans with a string of acronyms which you and I, the common layman cannot understand and are made even more confused when they are explained by his incompetent ministers. What we can simply understand is that we must have huge projects which are good for the economy and subsidies cut to sustain the economy and prevent the country from bankruptcy.

The question is, do we get any benefits from these huge projects? No, but I am certain that cronies and well connected businessmen will gain a lot. We gain nothing from the huge projects but we definitely can feel the effect of the subsidy cut. The PM has no idea how to run and manage the country other than to please a handful of cronies and party supporters to ensure he remains in power.

Does he know that the whole system of running the country needs to be overhauled and the old system of divide and rule using race and religion have to be discarded?

You can argue that I am wrong and that the PM has come out with his "1Malaysia, People First Performance Now" agenda. But after nearly two years, what have become of it? What results has it shown? Nothing and instead the ethnic and religious harmony in the country have taken a turn for the worst.

You can see and judge for yourselves from the complaints and public dissatisfaction that are reported.

How can cutting of subsidies prevent the country from bankruptcy when the government is spending so much. We are paying the ministers to do their job. We have the foreign minister to deal with foreign countries but the PM is using his wife to represent the country, touring the world and acting like a de facto PM.

Why is the PM proud of reducing toll rates for selected highways when he should be studying the whole country's highway toll system to work out a fair solution on whether to reduce the rate or remove the toll completely?

Why is the PM throwing millions of ringgit to Felda, teachers and schools only during by-elections or the approaching general election? Is there no proper planning on how to distribute the money equally and fairly to the people of Malaysia on a long term basis?

As a common layman, what I can see is that you will get what is due to you only when there is an impending election. I do not see any long term planning to help the poor, to revitalise the education system, to stop police abuse, to practice true democracy and to revamp the justice system or to fight corruption.

I am not a good writer, journalist, editor or expert that can explain in detail or spin stories on the PM's rhetorics and slogans. I am just a common layman living a simple life and writing from my daily observations of working class people slaving daily just to survive through each month. There is nothing that we can benefit from the PM's economic plans. I am not that stupid to be fooled again by the same government that had ruled for over 50 years.

My fellow Malaysians, we have lived in a wooden attap house, which was fine and good, no leakages, strong wooden stilts and resistant to heavy wind and rain. Today after 53 years we are still living in this same house, the roof patched till it can no longer be patched, the wooden stilts have rot and may collapse and it cannot withstand heavy wind or rain anymore. So, don't you think it is time to tear the house down and rebuild one with concrete, bricks and mortar?

I am for change, that is the only way we can rebuild our country that can hold all Malaysians together, a truly satu bangsa satu negara environment.

Time to discard the old UMNO/BN and go for the new Pakatan Rakyat.
