

Malaysian Politics Have Sunk To An All Time Low
Malaysianmirror.com
March 29, 2011

KUALA LUMPUR - DAP's Lim Kit Siang today said that politics in Malaysia have sunk to an all time low.

In his statement to Malaysian Mirror, Lim said that Prime Minister Najib Tun Razak had claimed success on Sunday over the first annual report of the Government Transformation Programme (GTP) particularly in the six pillars or National Key Result Areas (NKRAs).

"All these NKRAs whether in fighting corruption or reducing crime can be challenged but one NKRA which the Najib administration has indisputably achieved is the plunge of Malaysian politics to the lowest and dirtiest gutter level in the nation's history."

Lim was referring to the sex video recording allegedly involving an opposition leader that was screened to selective journalists last week by "Datuk T".

I am therefore utterly shocked that the Minister in the Prime Minister's Department, Nazri Aziz, has come to the defence of the criminals when he said that the "Datuk T" trio responsible for the shameful and despicable Carcosa scandal can be protected under the Witness Protection Act and Whistleblower Act."

He said that even before the police have taken action against the "Datuk T" trio under various laws of the country, the Barisan Nasional government has come to their defence and even granting them immunity and impunity for their crimes.

"Under these circumstances, who can have confidence that current investigations into the Carcosa Sri Negara scandal will be fair, professional and in the full national interests? Even top police officials do not have such confidence."

He further highlighted that the Malaysian Consultative Council for Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Sikhism and Taoism (MCCBCHST) has described the sex video recording as the "mother of all moral scandals" perpetrated by titled personalities and so-called leaders.

The council had since then called on the government to take swift and firm action against all those behind the scandal.

The DAP veteran said that he fully agree with Dr. Paul Tan Che Ing, the Catholic Bishop of the Melaka-Johore diocese and who is also the president of the Catholic Bishops Conference, who has issued a very stern warning about the far-reaching implications of the Sri Carcosa scandal.

Lim quoted Tan as saying "If the authorities do not take action against those responsible when laws are flagrantly flouted, then we are engendering a situation where fair is foul and foul is fair. This is a dangerous pass, one in which people, especially the young, will think that there is one set of rules for a privileged few and another set of rules for the rest."