

Malaysia Belongs To All Malaysians

You were born in Malaysia, received a birth certificate as proof and you received an identity card upon attaining the age of twelve and with these you are a citizen of Malaysia, hence you are a Malaysian.

Why is it so hard for the ruling government to accept this simple fact and treat each and every Malaysian with fairness? Why must they keep harping about race and religion? The Federal Constitution of Malaysia, which came into force in 1957, is the supreme law of Malaysia. Is it that difficult to run the country with this guided Constitution? Trying to misinterpret, ignore or quote the constitution as and when it suits the government in order to hold on to power is a sure disaster.

Each time Malaysia has a new Prime Minister, Malaysians have high hopes from the new PM to take the country to new heights. Each PM came in with a big bang, promising the sky and moon with each having their own slogan and using the rakyat's money to promote it aggressively. But alas the euphoria did not last long when the NATO (no action talk only) syndrome sets in.

The 4th PM, Dr. Mahathir had totally destroyed the strong foundation for a workable system among the various races and religions set by his predecessors. Corruption became part and parcel of his iron fist rule.

The 5th PM, Abdullah Badawi, was a new hope that the rakyat were looking up to that can reverse what Mahathir had done to the nation. As a Mr. Clean and soft spoken type, he started a series of changes, one that included the fight against corruption. He managed to turn the old ACA into the new MACC but it did not work out well as many viewed it as old wine in a new bottle. With his predecessor breathing down his neck, he was toppled after only one term as PM.

Everyone is more or less accustomed to the ways of how these two PMs ran the country.

With the 6th PM, Najib Razak, the rakyat are now getting more worried. He is totally different from his two predecessors. Other than the many baggages that he carried into his premiership, he is loaded with the greed for power and to have that he has gone against every principle of his own "1Malaysia People First Performance Now" slogan.

His many speeches were truly frightening while his support for Utusan and Perkasa that raised racism and religious issues against the non muslims reflected his inability to perform his duty as a PM for all Malaysians. His call for 'lost lives and crushed bodies' to defend Putrajaya indicated that he is willing to see Malaysians die in order for him to remain in power.

What is worst is his shameless lectures to the world about Islamic moderation, democracy, corruptions and what is good for the world but back home his actions are a total 180 degree turn.

The way he handled the Pre and Post Bersih 2.0 rally, his visit to the British PM and Queen, his meeting with the Vatican and what he said after returning home clearly identified his true hypocritical character.

He is using his position as PM to fight for his political party Umno and his presidency. He is fighting for SURVIVAL and does not care about the rakyat.

Najib & Co. must stop being paranoid and cast away all their imaginary enemies and stop all persecutions of the innocent.

Up to this point and having seen the damages done with not much hope of any improvement in the near future, I am sad to say that I have given up on Najib & Co.

Whichever party governs or whoever wants to be PM must know and fully understand the Federal Constitution of Malaysia and be guided by it in running this country. By all means help those in need of helping irrespective of color or creed and not those who are already rich or are well connected.

They need to know that the majority of Malaysians view:

That Malaysia belongs to all Malaysians.

Islam is the official religion of Malaysia.

We respect the King and the Constitution.

We want to live in peace and harmony among all the various races/ethnic groups, we respect each other and all religions

No one is planning to overthrow a legitimate government or King nor using religion, Jews, Communists or foreigners to take over the country.

Malaysians do not need to follow Egypt, Tunisia or Libya to remove their oppressive leaders, Malaysians only need one day to topple Umno/BN which is on the polling day of the 13th General Election.

Vote to send Umno/BN packing.
