PAS is constantly changing their meanings of the words 'welfare state', as they sometimes call it a 'welfare state' and then they change it by saying that it is not a 'welfare state' but a 'Nation of Care and Opportunity' instead.

This shows that their 'welfare state' is only an election ploy to cheat non-Muslim voters.

According to reports, PAS Vice-President Salahuddin Ayub had claimed that they are advocating a "Negara Berkeadilan", not the type of welfare state as referred to by the media but rather, a 'Nation of Care and Opportunity'.

In fact, before the 12th General Elections in 2008, PAS had gone around saying that they want to establish a welfare state, deliberately leaving out any mention of an Islamic state, but after the elections, PAS stopped talking about a welfare state and instead stressed that they will not give up on implementing PAS hudud law.

Now that elections are around the corner again, PAS has again repeated its welfare state plan in order to garner the support and votes of the non-Muslims with their empty promises.

If PAS is really sincere in establishing an Islamic welfare state, then they should stop twisting the meaning of the word 'welfare state' because its true meaning is not in its name, but in its values and substance.

If PAS has no intention of letting go their dream of implementing hudud law, then no matter how much they twist the meaning of a 'welfare state', they cannot change the fact that they still plan to implement hudud and this only reveals their hypocrisy.
