I condemn the actions of the two PKR state excos for Kedah, Tan Chow Kang and Lim Soo Nee, who had insulted the MCA Deputy Minister for Women, Family and Community Development, Heng Seai Kie at a dinner organized by the Moral Uplifting Society of Padang Serai, Kedah, as well as their attempt to cover up their deeds.

Such actions prove Pakatan Rakyat excos lack quality.

Both of them have denied using the word 'pig' in their insults directed at Heng. However this was witnessed by all the participants at the event. Therefore its meaning could not have been misunderstood. As state executive councilors, it is shameful that they resort to such lame excuses to absolve themselves.

As excos, their actions and attitude should be commented on by the public. Moreover, their clamoring beneath the stage and their threats to shut off the microphone was very rude.

Is this what Pakatan Rakyat meant by a two-party system where they are allowed to boast about their achievements but are unwilling to accept criticisms? This is proof that the quality of Pakatan Rakyat is unacceptable.

I can't help but question if the reason why the two state excos became overtly excited was because Heng had exposed the painful truth about them?

Kedah has seen a slow, gradual implementation of religion-based hardline policies and this fact cannot be hidden as it has been exposed through the media.

Lim Soo Nee's attempt to pin the blame on the previous state government has failed because Pakatan Rakyat have been in control of the state government for over three years and thus their responsibility cannot be ignored.

Pakatan Rakyat's tactics are very simple; they boast about policies which they can take credit for, but when it involves policies affecting the lives of non-Muslims they will place the responsibility on the previous state administration, and we have seen these tactics applied in other Pakatan Rakyat states too.
