

Newspaper	THE WALL STREET JOURNAL
Date	8 APRIL 2016

Warriors star Stephen Curry last month in Oakland, Calif.

When the NBA added the lines in 1979, the players weren't sure what to think. They sniffed and pawed at them like cats along and blew that assumption to pieces. The Warriors, the National Basketball seasons of any player in history. But there is another tale to be told about the Warriors. It involves a group of Please see POINTS page A6

Parents Have No Beef With This Preschool Menu

Jersey City vegan operation serves up tofu, squash risotto; rocks for toys

BY LESLIE BRODY

JERSEY CITY, N.J.—At the Scandinavian School of Jersey City, the children don't have cupcakes at birthday parties, but there is plenty of fruit salad. Instead of meat, eggs and dairy for the 1- to 6-year-olds, there is kale from the preschool's garden and cashew milk made from scratch.

This sought-after school in an increasingly hip city is unusually committed to the goal of getting children to eat their vegetables. The Scandi School, as it is called, is one of the few vegan preschools in the U.S.

The school didn't start out with such a specific diet. But when two children being raised vegan enrolled four years ago, school director Maria Germerud-Sharp didn't want them to feel left out at meals, so she banned what they couldn't have.

"One of the core values of the school is building community," she said. "We all eat together."

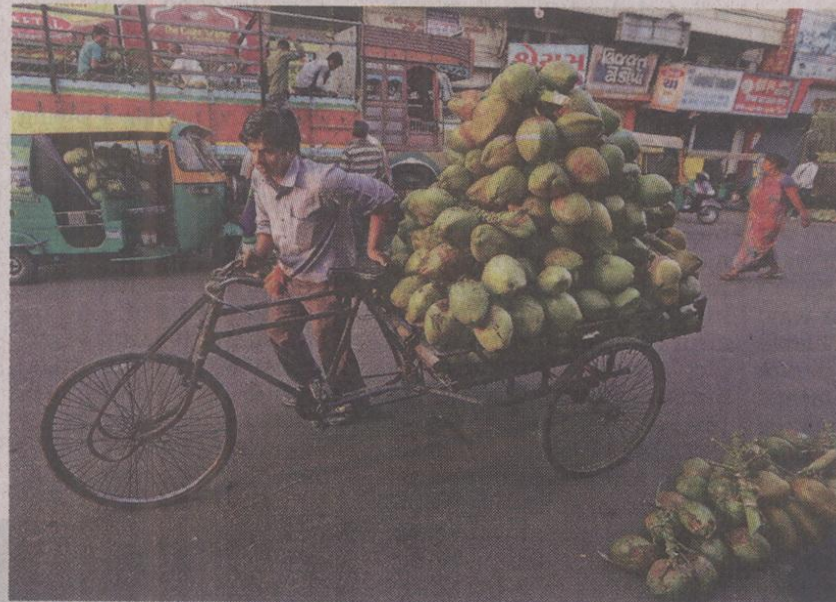

This is a gentle place where 92 children play barefoot to feel a connection to their environment and the air often smells like peppermint from aromatherapy. Classrooms have bowls of pine cones, seashells and rocks for toys.

Children learn a lot from their peers. Lucy Schapiro, who asked for leftover miso soup on a recent day, picked up a white cube from her bowl with her fingers and squished

Please see VEGAN page A6

Vegan lentil soup

AMIT DAVE/REUTERS

Coconut Oil Market Goes Nuts

IN DEMAND: Coconut oil prices have jumped nearly 20% in a month, in large part because of the popularity of trendy, upscale products like coconut water and sugar. Left, a vendor transporting coconuts through a busy market in the Indian city of Ahmedabad last month. B5

IMDB Report Recommends Investigation

BY TOM WRIGHT

The board of directors of a Malaysian state development fund offered to resign after a parliamentary inquiry found that billions of dollars went missing and recommended that senior management face a criminal investigation.

The Public Accounts Committee's findings mark the first time a Malaysian investigating body has leveled allegations of fraud at Malaysia Development Bhd., or 1MDB, which is the focus of corruption investigations in Malaysia and at least six other nations.

In response to the report, 1MDB's board of directors offered its collective resignation

Thursday. "The board has successfully steered 1MDB through a uniquely challenging period and trusts that, with the release of the PAC report, a line has been drawn," the board said in a statement. 1MDB has said previously that it has cooperated with authorities and would continue to do

Please see 1MDB page A2