

Trump, Anwar set for bilateral meeting tomorrow

KUALA LUMPUR: United States President Donald Trump is set to hold an expanded bilateral meeting and signing ceremony with Prime Minister Datuk Seri Anwar Ibrahim during the 47th Asean Summit tomorrow.

Based on the tentative schedule on the US' Roll Call website, Trump will be here in the morning, then attend a bilateral meeting with Anwar in the afternoon.

Trump will take part in a signing ceremony with Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Manet and Thai Premier Anutin Charnvirakul in the evening, believed to be on the border dispute agreement.

Trump will end the day at the 13th Asean-US Summit and a working dinner with Asean leaders, then depart on Monday.

Trump is set to meet Japan Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi, then leave on Wednesday for the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation Summit in South Korea.

On Thursday, US ambassador to Malaysia Edgard D. Kagan said semiconductor tariffs, trade, investments, security and regional stability were among the topics expected to be discussed during Trump's visit to Malaysia.

This marks Trump's maiden trip to Asia in his second presidency and the first visit to Malaysia by a US president since Barack Obama's visit a decade ago. Bernama