"Every part of our economy must perform, must be more productive, must be agile, and must be flexible to respond to challenges. That is why I believe that it is critical that we develop the human "software" to match the infrastructure "hardware" that we have built. A change in mindset and values is critical if we are to overcome the hurdles and continue on our development path.

We have a set of very clear aspirations and targets encapsulated in our vision 2020, which I fully subscribed to. I believe that the way forward to achieve those goals is a relentless and unyielding focus on quality and excellence, on building and reinforcing a strong "national performance culture". This, should be the key thrust that underscores our economic policies, our corporate strategies and our development priorities."

Congratulations, Bursa Malaysia on a successful demutualisation.
