KUALA LUMPUR, June 29 (Bernama) -- The Sarawak United People's Party (SUPP) central working committee's (CWC) decision not to immediately hold a central committee (CC) meeting is not against the party's constitution.

In a statement Wednesday through its lawyer, SUPP said there was "no legal basis to sue the party as the CWC's decision was properly made and did not breach the party's constitution".

"The SUPP CWC did not reject the requisition to hold a CC meeting, but made the decision to conduct a roadshow first to get views and feedback from the party's branches and grassroots members.

"Under the SUPP constitution, there is no time limit fixed within which the CWC must hold the CC meeting, after receipt of a requisition. Therefore, the CWC did not breach the party constitution when it decided to hold the roadshow first," said George Lo, a lawyer, who is representing SUPP.

On May 30, 58 SUPP's CC members, through their lawyers from Wong, Orlando Chua and Kuok Advocates, gave Dr Chan until June 15, to call for an emergency CC meeting to discuss a new party leadership.
