KLUANG, Dec 21 (Bernama) -- The Sultan of Johor, Sultan Ibrahim Almarhum Sultan Iskandar, today called at two flood relief centres in the state to see for himself how the evacuees were faring.

He first visited the relief centre at Sekolah Kebangsaan Sri Kencana in Machap and then that at Sekolah Agama Kampung Tengah here.

Sekolah Agama Kampung Tengah in the Kluang district houses the largest number of evacuees, exceeding 800.

Kluang is the worst-affected of five districts hit by floods, with the total number of evacuees at 12 centres standing at 2,154.

The sultan arrived at Sekolah Agama Kampung Tengah at about 2 pm and spent some time talking to the evacuees and enquiring about their welfare. He advised children not to play in the floodwaters.

Meanwhile, Kluang district officer Abdul Karim Abu Bakar, who had accompanied the sultan to Sekolah Agama Kampung Tengah, advised the evacuees not to return to their homes yet even after the floodwaters recede because of uncertain weather until Friday.

The National Security Council portal reported that as at 10 am today, the number of evacuees in Johor had dropped to 2,991 from 3,265 overnight.

Besides Kluang, the other districts affected by floods in the state are Batu Pahat, Pontian, Segamat and Kulaijaya.
