CYBERJAYA -- Former Prime Minister Tun Abdullah Ahmad Badawi was today conferred an Honorary Doctorate in Human Capital Development by Limkokwing University of Creative Technology.

The honorary doctorate, presented by the university's founder and president, Tan Sri Lim Kok Wing, was in recognition of his strong endeavor for human capital development during his tenure as the fifth prime minister of Malaysia.

In his acceptance speech, Abdullah spoke of the importance of building quality human capital, describing it as the best solution in building Malaysia.

"Unskilled and uneducated means a great loss, missing the opportunity to compete and to be successful," he said.

Abdullah noted that about half of the world population was now less than 25 years of age, making human capital development "a very important focus for the world." --
