SINGAPORE, Feb 16 (Bernama) -- The Ministry of Manpower (MOM) has issued a reminder to employment agencies (EAs) to get their personnel certified and registered by March 31, 2012.

Under the new employment agency regulatory framework, which came into effect on April 1, 2011, all EA personnel need to be certified in order to perform EA work.

In a statement, MOM said key appointment holders who failed to be certified would be de-registered.

As of Feb 14, MOM said over 85 per cent of Key Appointment Holders (KAHs) had obtained the Certificate of Employment Intermediaries (CEI).

However, there are still 542 KAHs (approximately 14 per cent out of 3,878) who have yet to be certified. They will need to do so by March 31, 2012.

KAHs who fail to be certified by March 31 will be de-registered.
