BERUAS: The Barisan Nasional government has proven that it has truly put the people first by returning the country's wealth to them says Prime Minister Datuk Seri Najib Tun Razak.

Thanks to good management of the economy, the country's revenue had increased and was enjoyed by the people in the form of various aid, he said Saturday.

He said that even though the Opposition alleged the aid was distributed to gain election support, the fact was the government had managed to reduce the country's debt and provide aid at the same time.

"We would not have been able to give all this if the country's economy has not been managed well.

"When the economy is sound and income is high, we return some of the nation's wealth to the people.

"By doing so, does this make us irresponsible (as claimed by opposition)," Najib said at a meeting the people gathering at SMK Changkat Beruas.

The Prime Minister said sharing wealth with the rakyat proved the government was responsible and that it put the people first as promised when he took office three years.

He assured the people that no one would be left out from enjoying the government's assistance, adding that groups like civil servants, fishermen, single mothers, senior citizens were benefiting from it.
