JOHOR BAHRU, March 24 (Bernama) -- Johoreans will have access to special collections of information about the United States of America once Lincoln Corner is officially opened to the public at the Sultan Ismail Library here.

A US embassy statement said deputy chief of mission Lee McClenny and Johor Baharu mayor Burhan Amin would grace the opening of the Lincoln Corner at the library located in Jalan Datin Halimah on Tuesday.

The corner, which will be the ninth in Malaysia, will have about 1,000 volumes of high-quality American books, magazines, board games and multimedia products such as DVDs for children and young adults.

Topics covered include fiction, American life and culture, environment, science and technology and teaching of English. It also features a wide selection of materials for adults interested in US foreign policy, politics, economics and professional topics.

The embassy is donating two iPads for public use at the facility.
