PUTRAJAYA, April 12 (Bernama) -- Human Resources Minister Datuk Seri Dr S. Subramaniam on Thursday made it clear that government will only announce the decision and recommendation made by the National Wages Consultative Council (NWCC) on the minimum wage issue.

"Whatever we are going to announce is what the council has recommended to the government. It is not something that the government is announcing," he said at a press conference here.

However, he said the government would not implement all the council's recommendations immediately.

He said the government would not make any decisions on its own since the council functions as an independent body to review and set minimum wages based on the tripartite principle involving the government, employers and workers.
