KOTA KINABALU, July 31 (Bernama) -- Chief Minister Datuk Seri Musa Aman's financial management of the Sabah government's coffers and his forest management policies is rated the best in the nation, said state veteran leader Tan Sri Herman Luping.

He said Musa, who has helmed the state government since the past nine years, had not only ensured the state government prospered, but had also given more political stability, prosperity and infrastructural development in the state.

"Sabah under him (Musa) is definitely in rapid progress modem," Luping told Bernama, here.

Luping, a former Deputy Chief Minister during the Usno era, said Musa's comprehensive strategy, which took into account resources from the state and federal agencies, kick-started his vision for a better and more progressive Sabah.

"When Musa took office, he introduced a blueprint on a strategic state development agenda called 'Halatuju', which focused on an aggressive effort to fully realise the state's tourism, agriculture and manufacturing potentials.
