JEMPOL, Sept 11 (Bernama) -- The people must understand that if the opposition makes promises, such promises are political in nature, not based on capability or goodwill, said Information, Communications and Culture minister, Datuk Seri Dr Rais Yatim.

He said because they were only good at making promises, the people must be alert and not fast to jump and say the Barisan Nasional (BN) 'is like this or like that' and more so from saying BN leaders were incapable.

"Actually, the people of Malaysia must look from the angle of children in schools and our younger generations who still need guidance. On how we have created national stability, racial harmony, peace and prosperity. All these we must deeply consider," he told reporters, here, Tuesday.
