KUALA LUMPUR, Nov 5 (Bernama) -- Barisan Nasional Youth feels that is most appropriate for the party's candidates to be announced two weeks or one month before general election.

Its chief Khairy Jamaluddin however said that would not be applicable for all constituencies due to internal factors and other risks that need to be addressed first.

"Don't announce the candidates six months before election. Rather than announcing them two days before nomination, we can do it two weeks or one month earlier."

He told Bernama that early naming of candidates could be implemented in constituencies where the majority of voters were identified as BN supporters.

The suitable constituencies are those with obvious candidates accepted by society such as Prime Minister Datuk Seri Najib Tun Razak in Pekan and Deputy Prime Minister Tan Sri Muhyiddin Yassin in Pagoh.
