NEW DELHI: Malaysia intends to open more visa centres in India to increase the number of visitors to Malaysia.

Prime Minister Datuk Seri Najib Tun Razak said Malaysia wanted to make the issuance of visas in India easier.

"There are now five centres, and we hope to have more centres in the smaller cities.

"The smaller cities are not all that small. They are just small in the Indian context, but (to us) they are huge by any stretch of the imagination," he told the Malaysian media delegation here on Friday.

Najib is in New Delhi to attend the two-day Asean-India Commemorative Summit, which celebrates 20 years of Asean-India relationship.

"I will bring it up and the appropriate agencies will take action to expand the number of visa centres in India," he said.

as long as the announcement (of the candidacy) have not been made," he said.
